Shriek of Whistles and Clang of Bells Greet "Inauguration Special."

MAGNIFICENT BANQUET IN HONOR OF NEW ROAD

Speeches by President Atkinson, Preston Arkwright and Others. From LaGrange to Birmingham the Inauguration Special Received an Ovation.

(By Lauren Foreman, Special Staff Correspondent.)

Birmingham, Ala., September 7—Never in the history of Birmingham has such an ovation been accorded a railroad train as was given the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic "inauguration special" on its arrival here this afternoon.

Far out in the suburbs the train was heralded by the shrieks of whistles and the clanging of bells, and as it approached the business center the din constantly increasing, reached deafening proportions.

Great Welcome Given Train.

On the tops of buildings, in trees, strung along lines of freight cars, from every point of vantage, there looked crowds, eager to catch a glimpse of the magnificent passenger train which marked the entry of this railroad, which gives Birmingham a shorter line to the Atlantic ocean than it has ever had before.

When the Louisville and Nashville passenger station was reached so dense was the crowd that a delay of several minutes was caused. Finally the man at the throttle pushed his pilot through the cheering crowd without doing damage to anybody, and the train was landed in the station where a welcoming address was made by Hon. John L. Parker, president of the Birmingham city council. He expressed the gratification felt by all Birmingham at the completion of this new line to Atlanta and to the Atlantic, and paid a high tribute to Harry M. Atkinson, of Atlanta, the man whose genius and tireless energy has brought to a successful conclusion the great undertaking.

At the close of his speech there were calls for Mr. Atkinson, and when he mounted a baggage truck to reply, it was several minutes before he could proceed, so hearty was the ovation given him.

The banquet tonight at the Hillman hotel was attended by over a thousand guests, and surpassed in magnitude and enthusiasm anything of the kind ever attempted in Birmingham before.

The Welcoming Banquet.

The crowning feature of the day's welcome was the magnificent banquet served at the Hillman Hotel. Over one thousand guests were seated, the number at that being limited by the capacity of the largest dining hall in the city. The Commercial club and the board of trade were joint hosts, but all of Birmingham joined in giving welcome both to the new railroad and the citizens from the various towns along its line.

The feature of the banquet was the cordial reception given the speeches of President H. M. Atkinson and Vice President P. S. Arkwright, who delivered extended addresses.

The history of the new completed system from the time Mr. Atkinson secured control of a few small and unimportant "pine" roads in south Georgia was listened to with the closest attention. Mr. Atkinson told of how the proposition had been financed and Mr. Arkwright related the story of the actual construction of the lines which make up the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad of today.

Editor Rhodes Toastmaster.

General Rufus N. Rhodes, editor of the Birmingham News, acted as toastmaster, and presided in a most happy manner. Five-minute speeches were delivered by the following:

John L. Parker, president of the city council of Birmingham, who represented Mayor George B. Ward; F. M. Jackson, acting president of the Commercial club of Birmingham; Mayor John P. Heffin, of Roanoke, Ala.; R. W. Ewing, president of the board of trade of Birmingham; Mayor R. D. Evans, of Lineville, Ala.; S. W. Lee, president of the Wholesale Grocers' Association of Birmingham; Mayor P. H. Smith, of Pyriton, Ala.; R. W. Massey, chairman of the joint entertainment committee of the Commercial club and board of trade of Birmingham; Mayor H. G. Rowland, of Ashland, Ala.; former Governor William D. Jelks, of Birmingham; Mayor S. C. Oliver, of Talladega, Ala.; Hon. W. D. Nesbitt, a member of the railroad commission of Alabama; Mayor W. L. Rush, of Bessemer, Ala.; Cecil Browne, division counsel of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad at Talladega, Ala.; Hon. O. W. Underwood, member of congress from the ninth district, in which Birmingham is located, and Lee C. Bradley, division counsel for the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic at Birmingham.

Triumphal Tour.

Leaving LaGrange at 6:30 o'clock this morning, the "inauguration special" made a triumphal tour of as fine a stretch of country as is to be found

SOME FIGURES SEEN IN ATLANTA'S BIG LABOR DAY PARADE

LABOR DAY'S BIG PARADE THE FINEST EVER SEEN

Working Men of Atlanta Owned Streets of the City for the Day.

EVERY VANTAGE POINT PACKED WITH OBSERVERS

Farmers From Rockdale, Ga. Formed One of the Most Interesting Features of the Parade—The Butchers' Organization Wins First Prize.

Atlanta, the Gate City of the South, was yesterday wholly in the hands and in keeping of working men of this section of the state. From every county in the congressional district working men came to take part in the day's exercises, and along with the mechanic came the farmer, the agriculturist being as much enthused over the prospects of the day as his fellow producer, who has long been looking with pleasant anticipation from one Labor Day to another.

It was early in the morning when evidences of the day came to the front. Upon every corner and within every block could be seen some evidence of the occasion. A badge, an overall, a banner or something that is not in evidence every day were to be noticed.

As the hours wore on, decorated vehicles came into sight, all wending their way towards the junction of the Peachtrees, whence the parade was to form.

That the committees had done well the work entrusted to them was shown by the promptitude with which the line moved off at the hour indicated. Chief Marshal Hewitt, with his assistants W. C. Puckett and Ben Rosenthal had their parts well in hand and promptly at 10:30 the platoon of police opened the way for the line.

Never before has Atlanta seen a larger a more thoroughly organized body move through the streets. It would require a well-trained military body to surpass the work of the unions. There is not a working force in Atlanta that was not represented in the line of march, thus showing how thoroughly and completely organized are the working forces of Atlanta.

From the starting point to the junction of Whitehall and Forsyth streets the sidewalks were packed, while every window and every vantage point of observation was packed with ladies and children. Various estimates place the line at from three to four thousand. It required fifty minutes for it to pass any point of observation. Anyway, it was the very best Labor Day parade Atlanta has ever seen.

The Line Forms.

The line of march was taken up at a little after 10 o'clock. A platoon of police at Peachtree and Baker streets started the line of march, while next came the Wedemeyer band of forty pieces, the members in regulation military uniform.

Immediately after the Wedemeyer band came the Federation float, one of the handsome presentations of the kind Atlanta labor people have shown.

There was a white canopy mounted upon six posts bearing the Atlanta Federation of Labor legends, and upon it were seated representatives of three or four ages of the working world.

In carriages came the visitors next. There were eighteen carriages in the line, and apart from the orator of the day and other speakers the occupants of the carriages were about the same as The Constitution printed yesterday morning. Though one of the shortest sections of the parade, it was one of the most interesting.

Firemen's Drum Corps.

The Firemen's Drum Corps, in their very catchy uniforms, were right along in line with the usual rhythmic lines, their every motion, with or without drum and fife action, drawing the attention of the spectators. Immediately behind the drums came the farmers' unions. Rockdale, Fulton, DeKalb, Campbell and Clayton counties each being represented, the various counties being drawn together in sections.

Leading the farmers and directly behind the drummers came a float drawn by four horses. That float was loaded

BLOOD SPOUTS IN FAMILY ROW

Nearly All Cleggs and Browns Ready for Hospital.

HATCHET, KNIFE AND CLUB

All Three Were Used, and as a Result Several Persons Are Dangerously Injured—Drinking Whisky Brought on the Row.

Columbus, Ga., September 7—(Special.) As the result of the most remarkable family mix-up in the history of Girard, Ala., John Brown has a broken leg, a tomahawked head, a slashed arm and a cut side; Jim Clegg, his brother-in-law, is spitting up blood; Mrs. Clegg is blue with bruises, and various members of the Brown family are nursing ailments.

Clegg and Brown were drinking at the latter's home and Mrs. Clegg went there to get her husband. Brown insisted on his having another drink, she says. She resisted the idea and Mrs. Brown also urged her husband to let Clegg go on home. It is alleged that Brown threw his wife off the porch, then pushed his daughter off, and, according to reports, struck his mother-in-law, who had added her remonstrances.

Clegg and wife started home and the latter says Brown followed them, striking her freely with a buggy whip, finally seizing her hair, jerking her to the ground and pommelling her with a brick.

In the meantime Clegg got busy with his knife, reduced Brown's arm to ribbons, and cut him in the side.

After Clegg and his wife got home they heard that Brown was coming and barricaded the door. Mrs. Clegg says that Brown tore a picket like a plank off the chicken house, broke down the door and bursting into their room, beat her with the plank until she was blinded by the blood that streamed down.

In the meantime Clegg got a hatchet and struck Brown in the head, but without disabling him.

A neighbor came in, separated the two men and pushed Brown down on a bed. When Brown arose he slipped on Mrs. Clegg's blood on the floor, and falling down broke his leg.

The plank which Mrs. Clegg says Brown beat her with has a long nail on the end. Mrs. Brown, the first person to be injured in the series of incidents, is Clegg's sister.

ATLANTA KINSMAN NOTIFIED

Gus Warren, of Atlanta, Brother-in-Law of Dead Woman, Is Wired of Tragedy—Mrs. Warren Noted Belle Before Her Marriage.

St. Louis, Mo., September 7.—(Special.)—Mrs. Thomas B. Warren died at the Baptist sanitarium tonight. The police report she shot herself above the heart, in the bathroom of her home, 4379 Delmar Boulevard, at 6:30 tonight, while her husband and their 7-year-old son were in the front part of the house and the cook was in the kitchen.

Warren inherited, with his brother, Gus, of Atlanta, Ga., the large fortune of their father, Dr. Isaac Warren.

Mr Warren refused to discuss the shooting with newspaper reporters, but, according to information secured by the police, Mrs. Warren had been suffering from a nervous breakdown for over a year. It is said that about two weeks ago she threatened to end her life.

Following the pistol shot report, Mrs. Warren was found prone on the floor of the bathroom. Drs. Holland, Hill and Lloyd Stewart, the family physicians, were called in. The police were not notified of the shooting, and the first they learned of it was when a patrolman saw the ambulance dash up to the house.

Gus Warren, at Atlanta, has been notified.

CRANK WITH PISTOL SOUGHT ROOSEVELT

IN CONFERENCE OVER CONVICTS

Some Progress Is Made by Fourth Conference Committee.

LITTLE DONE DURING DAY

Attempt Made to Instruct the House Delegation, but This Failed—Another Member Favored Increasing Number of Members of the Fourth Committee.

Yesterday's session of the legislature was as productive of results as those which proceeded from that historic incident in which—

"Napoleon, with a thousand men, marched up the hill and down again."

When the house met in the morning one conference committee reported that they were unable to agree. After much discussion and a yea and nay roll call on a motion to instruct a new conference committee, the fourth to be appointed so far this season, was named.

It was within a few minutes of midnight, when this committee adjourned after having labored, with brief intermissions for meals since midday. The committee consisted of Senators Farmer, Walden and Henderson and Representatives Blackburn, Donalson and Chamlee.

No statement would be made by any member of the committee, except to say that they were laboring hard to peach a solution that would prive acceptible to both houses. They has discussed at length the various features of the complex question, and believed that an agreement would be reached. They will resume their deliberations at 8:30 this morning.

In the morning an adroit move was made by Mr. Alexander, of DeKalb, who opposes the house bill, to instruct the fourth conference committee members to vote for the unconstitutional termination of the lease system on March 31, 1909.

He moved that the committee be informed that it was the wish of the house that the lease system end on March 31. The Holder bill, while it looks to the termination of the lease system at the earliest moment practicable, provides that convicts not wanted by the counties or municipalities of the state may be leased after April 1, 1909, if needed to supply revenue for working the other convicts on the roads.

Mr. Alexander called for the ayes and noes on his motion and one-fifth of the members voted to sustain the call.

Holder People Catch On.

Immediately the Holder people saw through this move, which would have been a tactical advantage for the senate bill. Mr. Dunbar moved to reconsider the vote by which the house had called for the ayes and noes. Upon this motion Mr. Candler, of DeKalb, called for the ayes and noes. Mr. Dunbar's motion was carried by a vote of 63 to 62.

Mr. Wise, of Fayette, moved to table the Alexander resolution. This was done by a vote of 70 to 58 and the house put itself on record as being opposed to instructions—or, in other words, to adopting the course recently taken by the senate and which had been so severely criticised.

Off With Old—On With New.

The report of the conference committee, consisting of Heard of Dooly, Barrett of Stephens and Anderson of Bulloch, was made by Mr. Heard. He reported that they had at first come to an agreement with the senate conferees and that negotiations then fell through because one senator had misunderstood and that they were unable finally to agree.

A motion by Mr. Smith, of Campbell, to discharge the committee and appoint a new one, was opposed by Mr. Alexander, who thought that if three committees had been unable to agree, it would be too much to expect that a fourth would. He said if the house was not prepared to take up new legislation—the Felder bill or the Alexander bill—it

REACHED FOR REVOLVER WHEN HALTED BY OFFICER

After a Struggle Coughlin Was Disarmed and Placed in Jail—Secret Service Men Think Coughlin Has Been in Asylum.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., September 7.—A crank armed with an antiquated "bulldog" revolver was caught near the president's house at Sagamore Hill by the secret service guards. The man described himself as John Coughlin, a detective, and, when stopped by the secret service men, presented a card upon which was inscribed his name and the word "officer." He said that he had come to ask the president to order out 10,000 troops to catch yeggmen who had been terrorizing Boston.

Walked to Sagmore Hill.

Coughlin is supposed to have reached Oyster Bay on the 12:19 train. He walked the three miles to Sagamore Hill, appearing in the grounds shortly after 2 o'clock.

One of the rules for visitors at Sagamore Hill is that no one small come on foot, so when Secret Service Agent Adams caught sight of Coughlin, he guessed that something was wrong. In response to the demand as to his business, Coughlin produced a card and explained in the most casual way that he had come to confer with President Roosevelt concerning the recent outrages of yeggmen in Boston and to lead back such troops as the president thought it fit to order out.

The secret service ma ntried to explain that the president was not seeing visitors at the moment, hoping to get him quietly out of the grounds. Coughlin hesitated a moment and then slid his hand toward the back pocket of his trousers. Adams grappled with his man without further parley.

Resisted Officers.

Coughlin struggled for a moment, but Adams had no difficulty in holding him until Agent Sloan came to his assistance. Sloan searched the prisoner and found in his hip pocket a 32-caliber revolver of the "bulldog" type. The weapon was wrapped in a woolen bag, and, according to secret service men, was not loaded.

The slight struggle near the tennis court had not been observed at the house, and the secret service men, without alarming the president's family, called one of the government automobiles and carried Coughlin down to the Oyster Bay town hall, where he was arraigned on a charge of carrying concealed weapons, and committed to the county jail at Mineola. During his detention at the county jail, Coughlin will be examined as to his sanity.

According to the secret service men, Coughlin told them that he had been confined for three years in an asylum for the insane.

CHICAGO LABOR TURNS ITS DAY INTO BRYAN DAY

Toilers of the Great City Rend the Air With Cheers for Democratic Nominee.

"OUR NEXT PRESIDENT" BURDEN OF LABOR'S CRY

During the Day Mr. Bryan Was in Charge of Labor Leaders, and He Received Ovation After Ovation—Bryan Deeply Touched by Reception.

Chicago, September 7.—Organized labor today paid tribute to William J. Bryan. Although it was Labor day, it soon became manifest that the workers had surrendered their privilege, and made it Bryan day. Within an hour after his arrival in the city the democratic candidate for president, standing on the balcony of the Auditorium hotel, received the plaudits of thousands of toilers as they marched by in the monster labor parade. The air was rent with cheers, and the enthusiasm was unbounded.

Not infrequently the workers halted before the presidential candidate, doffed their caps and gave three cheers "For our next president." Many others more familiarly addressed him as "Bill" and "William." A mighty shout went up when he reached out his hands and caught a cigarmakers' union badge which one of that body threw to him from the street.

The pleasure which the ovation offered Mr. Bryan was undisguised. He smiled continually, bowed and clapped his hands, always giving the women in the parade an equal share of applause.

So insistent for a speech was the crowd in front of the hotel that Mr. Bryan yielded.

In the course of a brief address he paid a tribute to labor, and said he believed in the observance of Labor day, because he thought "We all ought to strive to assist in dignifying in every possible way the honest toil upon which our nation properly rests."

Ovation After Ovation.

But this was only one feature of the visit of the democratic candidate. Following the parade he was whisked away in an automobile to the Iroquois Club in company with and followed by many labor leaders. There luncheon was served, and he made a short speech. Luncheon concluded, Mr. Bryan was conducted to Forest Park, several miles away, where he was scheduled to deliver a Labor day address.

There a multitude awaited his coming. As he neared the park, word was passed around and he got another ovation as he came in sight. So eager was the crowd to catch a glimpse of and to hear him that they got beyond the control of the police who were fairly swept off their feet.

Mr. Bryan himself had to struggle to make a headway to the pavilion. Without any preliminaries, President John Fitzpatrick, of the Chicago Federation of Labor, introduced Mr. Bryan, who because of the cheers he received, stood for several minutes at the front of the pavilion before he began his speech on the abuse of the injunction in labor disputes. The speech was practically duplicated at Brand's park an hour afterward, where the electrical workers were holding forth.

Bryan's Address to Labor.

Mr. Bryan said in part:

"There are two questions, however, intimately connected with the labor problem upon which the democratic and republican parties do not agree, and I not only feel at liberty to discuss these, but, under the circumstances I have no right to ignore them. One relates to the issue of injunctions, and the other to contempt cases arising under injunctions. The republican convention did not deal candidly with the laboring man on the subject of the writ of injunction. Secretary Taft has endeavored to amend his platform in this respect and to make some promises, which are not supported by his platform, but his promises offer nothing substantial in the way of reform, and are not binding on republican senators and members. The republican congress has already made a record on labor questions, and the re-

A Simple Test Which Any Reader of this Paper May Try

Do you know whether you are inclined to, or have kidney trouble?

Have you ever tried the simple test of setting aside your urine in a bottle or vessel for twenty-four hours?

A sediment or settling in the urine indicates a diseased condition.

Science has today furnished proofs that all the purifying that your blood needs; in fact, all that can be done, must be done by your kidneys.

They are the most important organs, because they filter and purify the blood.

The kidneys strain or filter out the impurities in the blood—that is their work.

When your blood is impure, nothing can purify it but your kidneys.

To overcome these troubles take Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that has yet been discovered.

If you mention our paper and write Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle, they will send it free by mail—it will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys.

HEARST TALKS TO UNION MEN

He Scores the Old Parties and Gompers at Davenport, Iowa.

BRYAN NOT BOTHERING WITH EDITOR HEARST

Chicago, September 7.—William J. Bryan was asked tonight if he had read the Labor day speech of W. R. Hearst. He replied that he had not, but he understood that Mr. Hearst had made some criticism of him.

"I am fighting Mr. Taft," said Mr. Bryan. "Either Mr. Taft or I will be elected." If Mr. Hearst will declare that he is endeavoring to help elect Mr. Taft and Mr. Taft will indorse Mr. Hearst as a representative of republican ideas and Mr. Hearst's methods of campaigning, I will answer Mr. Hearst, otherwise I do not feel called upon to do so."

Davenport, Iowa, September 7.—Under perfect weather conditions, 5,000 working men paraded here today previous to a tri-city celebration at Suburban Island park, participated in by labor unions of Davenport, Rock Island and Moline, Ill. Thomas L. Hisgen, independence candidate for president, occupied a carriage in the parade.

William Randolph Hearst and Mr. Hisgen were the principal speakers at a picnic this afternoon.

"In intend to talk politics, because we are all thinking politics at this time, but I do not intend to make a political or a partisan speech.

"When I first urged labor unions to go into politics Mr. Gompers disagreed with me and declared that labor unions ought to keep out of politics.

"Now Mr. Gompers agrees with me that labor unions ought to go into politics, but I don't agree with him on the way labor unions ought to go into politics, and inasmuch as he was wrong and I was right before, maybe he is wrong now and I am right now.

"Mr. Gompers thinks that the right way is for all labor unions to lay their votes in his basket like a lot of good, dutiful political hens, and then for him to take his basket to market and peddle the contents to the republican party or the democratic party.

"The objections to this plan are many and they are convincing and conclusive.

"First you cannot afford to place so much power with any man or any set of men. There is a distinct danger that the contents of the basket would be peddled more for the benefit of the owner of the basket than for the advantage of the honest, trustful layers of the votes. There would be competition for the contents of the basket of a kind that would debauch and destroy your organization without benefitting the humbler members.

"Second, you would never be harmonious in your ideas of how the votes should be delivered. You would be divided by differences of opinion; you would be disrupted by dissensions.

"Third, you would get little or no result from such a system, for the men elected would be primarily democrats or republicans. They would be your friends before election, but would forget all about you after election.

"Fourth, you have tried out the old parties time and time again and found them wanting every time, and it would be absurd for you to waste your time and your opportunities persisting in a policy that has continually proved a failure.

"If anyone tells you that the democratic party is a new party with a new attitude toward workingmen, I stand ready to prove that it is the same old democratic party with the same old deceitful attitude toward workingmen.

"When, years ago, workingmen were in Washington arguing for what they honestly believed to be the best interests of themselves and their families and their fellow citizens generally and Mr. Bryan called them 'public beggars,' he did not show a spirit in sympathy with American labor or in harmony with American ideas.

"And when Mr. Bryan, the other day appointed as treasurer of the democratic campaign fund this man Haskell, a member of the secret citizens' alliance, hostile to labor in a mean and cowardly way, he did not show in that either a spirit in sympathy with American labor or in confidence in fair play."

JUST NONSENSE, SAYS HOWELL

So Georgia Editor Styles Talk of Taft Carrying Georgia.

BRYAN POPULAR AS EVER

Mr. Howell Says That the Combined Opposition to Bryan in Georgia Will Not Poll Over 75,000 Votes—Brown Will Win by 100,000 Majority.

Chicago, September 7.—Members of the democratic national committee who are gathered here for a conference tomorrow, met informally at the hotel late today and talked of the outlook for the democratic cause. Tomorrow the whole committee will meet and talk over campaign plans with Mr. Bryan and Mr. Kern. There will also be meetings of the advisory and finance committees. During the day Chairman Mack talked with each member of the committee on the situation in his state.

Efforts are being made to have Mr. Bryan make a long swing through the far western states during October, and it is not unlikely that he may consent to make the tour.

Clark Howell, national committeeman from Georgia, arrived here today and held a conference with Mr. Bryan and Chairman Mack. Conditions in the south were discussed.

Mr. Howell said:

"This talk of Mr. Taft carrying Georgia and other southern states is nonsense. Mr. Bryan is just as popular in the south as he ever was, and he will not only get the electoral votes of the southern states, but he will receive the popular vote as well in that section, and with majorities as large as in former years.

"Our state election takes place October 7, which is a month in advance of the presidential election. Mr. Brown, our nominee for governor, will have all of 100,000 majority. Although John Temple Graves, who is one of the candidates for the vice presidency on the ticket of the independence party, is a Georgian, I do not believe that he will poll more than 4,000 votes in the state. Taft's vote will be less than 45,000, and the combined opposition to the democratic party in Georgia will not have more than 75,000 votes."

W. L. Finney, state chairman of Ohio, called at headquarters today and arranged with Chairman Mack to make a lively campaign in Ohio. Not only will Bryan and Kern make speeches in Ohio, but the national committee will arrange speaking dates for Judge Alton B. Parker, Congressman Champ Clark and other speakers of prominence.

WRIGHT QUITS THE RACE.

Only One Republican Candidate for Governor of Tennessee.

New York, September 8.—Chairman Hitchcock, of the republican national committee, early today received a telegram announcing the withdrawal of Judge Wright, the nominee for governor of one of the republican factions in Tennessee. This leaves a clear field for Candidate Tillman, the nominee of the other republican faction. It was said at national headquarters that the withdrawal of Judge Wright would unite the republicans of Tennessee, and that a determined effort to carry the state would be made.

The negro is said to have refused to pay his fare and threatened the conductor. He got off the car at the corner of Lowe and Magnolia streets.

W. H. EVINS, HALF-BROTHER OF Assistant Chief of Police E. L. Jett, has recently returned to the city after an extensive tour of the states of the west. Evins has been away since boyhood, some 36 years, and in that time has made money and a reputation as a contractor. Since his residence in the great west Evins has been in every state beyond the Mississippi. Recently he has had an opportunity to size up the national political situation and says the people of the west are practically solid for Bryan. Evins returns to DesMoines, Iowa, to engage in contracting work in a short while.

THE REGULAR MONTHLY MEETING OF the police board will be held tonight at the station house. Aside from the routine business it is thought that the announcement of candidates who recently passed the examinations for supernumeraries places on the police force will be made. At a previous meeting it was decided to add half a dozen supernumeraries, and this number will be put on the roster of the force as soon as the examinations are satisfactorily passed.

JUDGE NASH R. BROYLES, RECORDER of the police court, is expected to return to the city from Highlands, N. C., today. Many recorders have officiated in Judge Broyles' absence. The judge is said to have had a most enjoyable vacation, and is thought to be amply prepared to administer justice where he left off.

WILLIAM H. TAFT SHAKES HANDS WITH VETERANS AT SANDUSKY

On his way to Cincinnati from Middle Bass island, Lake Erie, where he has spent a week fishing, Mr. Taft spent Labor Day in Sandusky, Ohio, with his friend, Charles Marsh. Mr. Taft made an impromptu address to the civil war veterans in that city during the day.

COMPERS CAFFS SPEAKER CANNON

Labor Leader Invades Home Town of "Uncle Joe."

CANNON ENEMY TO LABOR

So Gompers Asserts, and He Advises Union Men to Vote Against the Speaker—Attack on Cannon Not Very Well Received.

Danville, Ill., September 7.—Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, opened his campaign against the reelection of Joseph G. Cannon as a member of the national house of representatives today when he spoke at the Labor Day celebration in this city. Mr. Gompers spoke to a crowd of about one thousand people.

"If you wish to defeat Mr. Cannon," the labor leader said in concluding his speech, "you will have to vote for a man who is here listening to this address."

Refused to Hear Democrat.

With this reference to H. C. Bell, the democratic opponent of Speaker Cannon, Mr. Gompers quit the stand. Immediately there were cries from the democratic portion of the audience for Mr. Bell. The labor leaders of Danville and the surrounding country, who had the celebration in charge, refused, however, to allow Mr. Bell to mount the rostrum, despite the fact that the democratic candidate had told Mr. Gompers that he would be glad to address the crowd. Thus what might have been turned into a democratic mass meeting was averted by the labor men, who desired that their celebration be kept without the bounds of politics.

Incidentally, Mr. Gompers took occasion to pay his respects to the republican presidential ticket.

"There's a glorious triumvirate," he said, after he had charged both the republican nominees with being leagued with employer and not employee, adding Mr. Cannon to the list.

Cannon Foe to Labor.

"There's a glorious triumvirate. If you people here love Mr. Cannon so much, you'll be doing the American people a great favor by keeping him at home. He is the worst enemy of organized labor in the United States today.

"Labor leaders have constantly appeared in congress asking for legislation favorable to the laboring men. All they got was some flimsy bit of statute of no practical benefit. Then we went before the last republican national convention. Someone said that we got a plank on labor there. I want to tell you it was nearly a whole woodpile."

Gompers Not a Democrat.

Mr. Gompers declared to his audience that he was not a democrat, that he never had been a democrat. "I was a republican once," he said, "but, thank God! I've got over that."

Mr. Gompers spoke for an hour and a half. For an hour he devoted himself to the tenets of organized labor, and made a favorable impression on the crowd. Then he branched out on an attack on Mr. Cannon. This did not sit so well with the crowd, and at the close of his address the labor leader was speaking to not more than 700 people.

Carpenter Heir to $7,500,000.

Berlin, September 7.—Frederich Schmidt, a carpenter of Spindelhof, Upper Palatinate, has been notified through the Bavarian legation at St. Petersburg that he is heir to $7,500,000 in cash and to several estates in Russia, the property of a certain German soldier of fortune named Schmidt. The latter was in the Russian service during the Crimean war and was promoted to be a general. He married a rich countess. His heir won the Iron Cross in the Franco-Prussian war.

QUEEN OPPOSED TO MISS ELKIN

Italian Dowager Objects to Duke of Abruzzi's Fiancee.

BUT THE DUKE IS RESOLVED

He Will Wed Daughter of United States Senator With or Without the Consent of Queen Margarita — Why Queen Opposes.

Rome, September 7.—The Milan Unione, a clerical paper, publishes an article which has been reproduced by the whole Italian press, to the effect that the Duke of the Abruzzi will probably soon go to the United States to make definite arrangements for his marriage with Miss Katherine Elkins, the daughter of United States Senator S. B. Elkins, of West Virginia, and that it is reported the ceremony may take place on January 29, the duke's birthday.

Dowager Queen Opposes.

According to The Unione, the count of Turin, a few days ago, visited Dowager Queen Margarita at Gressoney, where she is spending the summer, and attempted to overcome her opposition to the marriage of his brother, the duke of the Abruzzi, to Miss Elkins. It had been the intention of the duke to have the marriage ceremony take place in December if the opposition of the royal family could be removed, but during the recent celebration of the silver wedding of the duke and duchess of Genoa, at which all the Savoy princes were present, opposition on the part of Queen Margarita appeared stronger than ever. She said, however, that time might bring a change in her opinion, and after waiting a reasonable period, the count of Turin sought her at her country home.

In espousing the cause of his brother, the count declared to the dowager queen that the duke was steadfast in his love for Miss Elkins, and if he broke his engagement to her it would be impossible for him to form an alliance with any one else.

Qualifications of Miss Elkins.

He added that Miss Elkins possessed all the qualifications to enter the house of Savoy, and that while she was not of royal blood, this was in keeping with the family tradition, as the late Prince Amadeo, duke of Aosta, married a lady of recent nobility, who, however, sat on the throne of Spain for five years. The count added also that as the duke was now 35 years of age, it would not be proper for him to delay marriage much longer.

Queen Margarita answered that her views on the question had not changed, and she refused to give her consent to the marriage. She objected to such an alliance also because she believed many Americans thought that the duke of the Abruzzi had sought marriage with Miss Elkins when he found that the American girl would come into a large estate.

The count declared that the duke was ready to marry Miss Elkins even without the queen's consent, and left for Spezia to inform his brother of the failure of his mission.

"REDS" STIRRED BY MARSEILLAISE

Anarchists Attempt to Capture Meeting for Unemployed.

BERKMAN PUT UNDER ARREST

And Emma Goldman and Another Woman Ejected by New York Police — Anarchists Were Moved to Action by the Notes of the "Marseillaise."

New York, September 7.—An attempt was made today to turn a meeting of unemployed workingmen into an anarchistic demonstration, and for half an hour the big meeting hall in Cooper Union, where the meeting took place, was the scene of wild excitement, during which red flags were raised, the police denounced and incendiary speeches made.

Alexander Berkman, the anarchist, who some years ago shot Henry C. Frick, a steel company official, during the Homestead strike in Pennsylvania, was dragged from the hall by the police and locked up. A young woman who gave her name as "Mary Smith," and who stood by Berkman, also was arrested, and Emma Goldman, recognized leader of the "Reds" in this country, was made to leave the hall.

Not since the disturbing scenes following a meeting held in Grand Central palace to celebrate the acquittal of William D. Haywood, accused of the murder of ex-Governor Steunenberg, of Idaho, has the anarchists element raised such a disturbance here. Only the stren measures adopted by the police prevented the meeting from becoming an out-and-out anarchistic affair, although the Unemployed and Brotherhood Welfare Association, which planned the meeting, had no other intention than to present its claims that there are thousands of idle workmen here.

Planned by "Millionaire Hobo."

J. E. Eads Howe, of St. Louis, sometimes alluded to as the "Millionaire Hobo," planned the demonstration. He and other officers of the Unemployed and Brotherhood Welfare Association, have for some time been making arrangements for a monster parade and meeting on Labor day, but when the parade formed today, there were less than 1,000 in line.

The police say they recognized many anarchists in line, among them some whom attended the meeting in Union square last spring when a bomb was thrown at the police which killed a spectator and fatally wounded the bomb thrower himself.

There were four big banners of canvas and many smaller flags and standards carried in the parade, bearing such inscriptions as these: "Twenty-five thousand unemployed walk the streets of New York every night."

"New York with all its glory has no way to take care of its unemployed."

"We want jobs or bread for our families."

As the parade drew up in front of the Cooper-Union a well-dressed man stepped to the side of Mr. Howe and asked him to have the band play the "Marseillaise." Mr. Howe referred the man to the leader of the band. As the French national air was not on the program, the man gave the band leader a dollar to play it.

"Marseillaise" Started Trouble.

It was the playing of this air, identified in past times with so much bloodshed, that started the trouble. As soon as the crowd had gathered in the hall, the band began to play the "Marseillaise," and in an instant nearly every one present jumped to his feet cheering and stamping on the floor. Red flags appeared but the police quickly made the holders of these put them away.

Alexander Berkman and Emma Goldman entered the hall at this juncture and took seats near the platform.

Dr. Ben Reitman, who calls himself "King of the Hoboes," and who was one of the first speakers, announced that his speech had been written by Emma Goldman. This brought forth cheering. Dr. Reitman was on the programme for a speech on the "Care of the Unemployed," but it was not noticed that he had anything to say on this subject. Dr. Reitman urged the unemployed to cease submitting to labor. He denounced public institutions and then said:

"Listen, this is anarcny, but I tell you there should be fewer thousands expended in the maintenance of churches and the police, and the money should be expended in caring for the unemployed such as you, and not spent in keeping up such superstitions."

Anarchists Get Busy.

At that time Charles Oberwager, a former president of the Central Federated Union, was introduced. He denounced the preceding speaker, declaring Dr. Reitman had preached the doctrine of anarchy.

This caused an outburst, and during the excitement, Berkman sprang to his feet and demanded to be allowed to take the platform to defend the anarchistic doctrines in which he believes. Policemen swarmed through the hall and ordered the disturbers to be quiet, while several blue-coats surrounded Berkman. Emma Goldman tried to reach his side, but she was stopped and told to leave the hall or she would be arrested. She obeyed. Then the young woman who said her name was "Mary Smith," fought her way to Berkman's side and urged him to take the platform. Berkman tried to do this, and was arrested. The crowd closed in about the policemen, and for a moment it looked as though a rescue might be attempted, but Berkman remained calm and said nothing to urge his followers on. Other policemen took "Mary Smith" into custody, and the two were taken to a police station where they were locked up, charged with disorderly conduct, and inciting a riot.

would be better to inform the governor that the legislature was deadlocked and wished to go home.

Mr. Hall thought any discussion of new bills would be time wasted. He said the conference committee, of which he was the house chairman, had agreed to a termination of the lease system on March 31, 1909, in the discretion of the governor, if the funds necessary to do it were in his hands. This proposal was rejected by the senate conferees.

Suggested Committee of Five.

Thinking there might be some efficacy in the change of the number of a committee, Messrs. Russell, of Muscogee; Fowler, of Bibb; Hardman, of Jefferson, and Perry, of Hall, united in a resolution providing for the appointment of a committee of five representing all shades of opinion, to meet with a like number from the senate. This was voted down.

The Alexander plan of instructing the house committee was next sprung, and disposed of as indicated above.

The new conference committee named by Speaker Slaton consists of Messrs. Blackburn, of Fulton; Donalson, of Decatur, and Adams, of Elbert. Mr. Chamlee, of Floyd, was later substituted for Mr. Adams, who was absent.

The house adjourned to meet again this morning at 10 o'clock.

COUNT CASTRO NOT SIGNED

One of Lou's Practical Jokes Is Pulled Off.

By Dick Jemison.

The writer regrets the error he made in stating in yesterday morning's issue that Lou Castro would be back in the game at short for the Champs.

This was probably one of Lou's favorite jokes, but the writer got the news from an authoritative source, and as the team had not returned to the city at that time he could not confirm it.

There was quite a large crowd out yesterday to see the Champs play, and the writer was the recipient of many chidings on the part of his friends when it was learned that Castro would not play. Several people whom he did not know said: "I would not have come out to the game at all if I had known that Castro was not going to play." Only last night the writer also received several telephone messages asking where he got such a report from.

Talk about your advertising schemes, but that was a pippin, the Count has got Christy Mathewson backed off the board as a drawing card. At least half of the people came out with the expressed intention of seeing Castro play, and for no other reason, and while they were disappointed in that, still they saw a rattling good game of ball, the longest yet played at Ponce de Leon.

When asked about the Castro deal yesterday, Billy Smith said that it was news to him.

LABOR DAY EXERCISES HELD AT FEDERAL PRISON

A Fine Program Was Rendered for the Men Behind the Bars.

Among the celebrations and festivities of Labor day was a most attractive entertainment in the auditorium of the federal prison in the forenoon for the inmates of Uncle Sam's pen.

The prison orchestra discoursed sweet strains of instrumental music, rendering several delightful pieces.

Mrs. Arthur E. Creviston, of Trinity church choir, sang some beautiful contraito solos. Miss Evelyn Lewis gave some choice selections in excellent dramatic style. She is an elocutionist of the highest order.

Walter D. Brown rendered two baritone solos and Mr. Frampton, of New York, recited some of Fred Emerson Brooks' best poems.

The whole entertainment was one of the best ever had at the prison and the men behind the walls enjoyed it exceedingly.

White Caps Win and Lose.

The White Caps and Battle Hill teams played two interesting games Monday afternoon at Poplar Springs, the White Caps winning the first by the score of 3 to 1, and Battle Hill the second by 7 to 3.

Conway, for the White Caps, and White, for Battle Hill, both pitched gilt-edged ball. Conway only gave up one hit and struck out 7 men, while White gave up 6 hits and struck out 6.

Jones, Lochridge and Adams, for the White Caps, and Coffey and Sullivan, for Battle Hill, played star ball.

Skipworth and Spangler, for Battle Hill, and Hulsey and Jones, for the White Caps, were the batteries in the second game, Skipworth giving up 7 hits and striking out 7 men, while Hulsey gave up 8 hits and struck out 4.

These two strong teams still have an even break, each winning three games, and it is worrying the managers of both teams as to when they will break the tie.

S.S.S. HEALS SORES AND ULCERS

Sores and Ulcers are indications of impure blood. They show that the circulation has become infected with germs and poisons, which are being constantly discharged into the open place to irritate the delicate nerves, tissues and surrounding flesh and keep the sore in a state of inflammation and disease. Whether these impurities in the blood are the result of some debilitating sickness, an old taint from a former disease, or whether it is hereditary bad blood, there is but one way to cure sores and ulcers, and that is to purify the blood. Washes, salves, lotions, etc., are often beneficial because of their cleansing, antiseptic effects, but nothing applied to the surface can reach the blood, where the real cause is, and therefore cannot cure. S. S. S. is the remedy for sores and ulcers of every kind. It gets down to the very bottom of the trouble and removes every trace of impurity or poison, and makes a lasting cure. S. S. S. changes the quality of the circulation, so that instead of feeding the diseased parts with impurities, it nourishes and heals the irritated, inflamed flesh and causes the ulcer to fill in with healthy tissue by supplying it with pure, rich blood. BRYAN'S CHANCES NEVER BETTER

So Declares Don Farnsworth, of Tennessee.

HE SUMS UP THE SITUATION

Mr. Farnsworth Is Stopping in Atlanta and Is Making a Tour Through South to Ascertain the Political Conditions. Makes Interesting Talk.

"Mr Bryan unquestionably has the best chance of election this year he has ever had. The indications in the middle west and far west are most encouraging for democratic victory, and

DON FARNSWORTH.
Who is Touring the South in the Interest of the Democratic nominees.

we, of course, expect the south will stand like a stone wall."

This was the way the national political situation was summed up yesterday by Don Farnsworth, a native Tennessean, who is now taking a prominent part in the work of the democratic national campaign headquarters in Chicago.

Mr. Farnsworth is spending a few days in Atlanta in the course of a tour through the south, undertaken for the purpose of feeling the pulse of the south and discussing the situation with the leaders of political thought in this section.

Town for Vice President.

At the recent democratic national convention in Denver, Mr. Farnsworth was conspicuous for his management of the vice presidential boom of Charles A. Towne, of Michigan. Since then he has entirely abandoned his business as manufacturer, banker and broker, and thrown himself into the active work of the present campaign. For the past eight years he has been president of the Hough Shade company, of Janesville, Wis. He is an officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, one of the most important commercial bodies of the middle west. He is also interested in Georgia, having invested money in a peach orchard at Baldwin, Ga.

In discussing the political situation in this section as he had found it, Mr. Farnsworth said:

"Tennessee has been claimed by the Republicans and I notice that claims are being made that Georgia will be lost to the democratic nominee. I have just finished a tour of my home state of Tennessee, and while an interesting fight is on there, I believe we will win by a safe majority. From what I hear from leading democrats in this section, the votes cast for Mr. Hisgen, the independence league candidate, and Mr. Watson, the populist nominee, will be inconsiderable. Mr. Taft may gain some strength in the cities of Georgia, but not enough to make him a formidable rival for this state's electoral vote.

The South Is the Bulwark.

"The south has been the bulwark of democracy since the civil war, and has kept alive the democratic principles of Jefferson and Jackson through all sorts of political vicissitudes, which means that in the hour of a nation's peril from all sorts of abuses, a discriminating tariff, the greedy trusts, and governmental favoritism, the democratic party has been the means by which these elements of discord and ruin have been checked.

"It is now getting popular for the republican party taking its inspiration from the body of the whole American people to favor many of the democratic principles. Then, if it be true that the democracy of our country has been the real savior from ruin and distress, why should the democrats of Georgia see any wisdom in changing their politics to republicanism?"

Mr. Farnsworth leaves today for Cornelia, but will return on Friday for a few days' stay.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN ADDRESSES LABOR DAY THRONGS IN CHICAGO

William Jennings Bryan began his first eastern speaking tour of the campaign in Chicago on Labor Day. Mr. Bryan made three speeches in the Illinois metropolis on that occasion. He also met all the prominent labor leaders personally and paid a visit to the Chicago headquarters of the democratic campaign.

publican party cannot escape from that record.

"Mr. Taft's speech may be considered as binding upon him, but the convention which selected the republican candidates indorsed the republican platform—not Mr. Taft's personal views. The republican platform was a triumph for those who have been opposing the laboring man, and they have been boasting of their victory.

Demand Is Unmistakable.

"Speaking of industrial disputes, the democratic platform declares that 'injunctions shall not be issued in any cases in which injunctions would not issue if no industrial dispute were involved.' How can that language be misconstrued or misinterpreted? If words mean anything, that plank means that an industrial dispute shall not, in itself, be regarded as a sufficient cause for an injunction. If an injunction issues in an industrial dispute, it must be based upon acts which would justify an injunction if there were no industrial dispute involved. There is nothing ambiguous about it; there is nothing that can be misconstrued or misinterpreted, even by one desiring to find a double meaning. Why do the republican leaders attempt to read ambiguity into those words? Simply because they cannot meet the proposition presented. Even Mr. Taft attempts to avoid the issue by saying that 'no one has ever maintained that the fact that a dispute was industrial gave any basis for the issuing of an injunction in reference thereto.' If it is true that no one now maintains that, then why find fault with our platform on that subject? If nobody opposes our position, we ought to have no difficulty in securing the passage of a law in harmony with this plank.

No New Proposal.

"We favor a measure 'which passed the United States senate in 1896, and which a republican congress has ever since refused to enact,' etc., providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt. The vote upon it was so nearly unanimous that no roll call was demanded. The bill was not smuggled through without discussion. It was amended in open senate and the members of the senate had ample opportunity to understand it. It would have passed congress and become a law long ago but for the fact that a few large corporate employers of labor have kept a lobby in Washington ever since, and have been able to coerce congress into ignoring the laboring men's plea.

"Mr. Taft is not an unbiased judge where the jury system is under consideration. He is not only known as a father of government by injunction, but he is prejudiced against the jury system, and Mr. Taft's long service upon the bench has led him to underrate the importance of the jury system. He has fallen into the error of assuming that any improvement in the method of court propedure is an attack upon the authority of the court. This is an ancient method of opposing reforms. Lord Macauley had to encounter a similar objection when he favored the reform of the rotten borough system of England. Those who were opposed to the reform construed it as an attack upon the throne and as a menace to the stability of government, but the reform was secured and the government of England was improved rather than impaired. So the reform attempted by the senate twelve years ago, and indorsed by three democratic national conventions, is in the interest of justice and has for its object the strengthening of the court in public estimation.

No Reflection Upon Judiciary.

"It is not a reflection upon the judge of a criminal court to say that he shall not decide upon the guilt of the accused. Our criminal courts are the better, not the worse, for the substitution of trial by jury. No common law judge feels that it is a reflection upon him when a party to a suit asks for a trial before a jury. It is the special function of a jury to decide upon the credibility of witnesses, and the manner of a witness upon the stand is often as important as his words in determining the weight to be attached to his testimony. A judge is apt to be hampered by precedent. He wants this decision to harmonize with former decisions rendered by him, although the facts are never the same in two cases. The jury is better able to decide each case upon its merits.

"It must be remembered, too, that in cases of indirect contempt, the charge is a criminal one, and that the punishment is by fine or imprisonment. All the reasons that apply to criminal cases apply to these cases of indirect contempt, and the abuses to be removed by the proposed law are those that have grown up because of the increased tendency of the great corporations to use the writ of injunction to avoid the jury trial.

"The democratic platform proposes no interference with the right of the judge to decide the cases of direct contempt—contempt committed in the presence of the court; neither is it proposed to interfere with the right of the judge to determine the punishment for indirect contempt. All that is sought is the substitution of trial by jury for trial by judge when the violation of the court's decree must be established by evidence.

Not a Labor Question.

"While the laboring men have been the first to complain of this denial of the right of trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt, it ought not to be considered a labor question. The jury system is so essential to the administration of justice that the subject ought to appeal to all who make a study of the science of government. If citizens would only be on their guard against beginnings of evils, it would be very easy to apply necessary remedies, but in the struggle for existence the voters are often indifferent to the application of an erroneous principle until repeated applications establish a custom, and in time a custom crystalizes into law. It behooves us, as lovers of our country and as the friends of liberty, to insist upon the independence of the different departments of our government and upon the maintenance of the rights which have been shown by experience to be essential to freedom and self-government. The jury system must be preserved, and we cannot hope to preserve it if, for any reason or under any pretext, we permit any citizen to be denied the protection which it furnishes.

In Charge of Labor Leaders.

From the moment the presidential candidate arrived here until he retired for the night he was in charge of the labor leaders.

The first cheers he received were at the railroad station where he was met by Colonel John I. Martin, sergeant-at-arms, members of the national democratic committee and representatives of labor organizations. Every move of Mr. Bryan from the station until he had entered the hotel several blocks distant, was recorded by a moving picture machine operated from an automobile which preceded the Bryan carriage. The pictures, it is understood, will be used in the campaign in connection with the phonographic records of Mr. Bryan's speeches.

Following a dinner at the home of Frank Buchanan, president of the Iron Workers' union, Mr. Bryan proceeded to King's restaurant, where at 10 o'clock tonight he attended an informal luncheon given by the Injunction Reform league. The luncheon furnished the opportunity for Mr. Bryan and Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to meet, Mr. Gompers having arrived on a late train from Danville, Ills.

Gompers Pledges Labor to Bryan.

It was nearly 11 o'clock when the speechmaking began. Mr. Bryan confined his remarks entirely to a tribute to Mr. Gompers as a leader of organized labor.

Mr. Gompers in responding, declared that organized labor was in the campaign "absolutely in harmony with the contentions which the democratic party and Mr. Bryan in this campaign make, not only for organized labor, but for the common people of our country." He likened the labor plank of the republican party to a lumber pile. "It is by no means a plank," he said, "but a mere ragged knothole." Mr. Taft he characterized as "the prolific mother of injunctions," and in referring to the Buck Stove and Range case, for which he and others are cited to appear in Washington Wednesday to answer to a charge of contempt, he asserted that he was tired of having men apologize for the right of free speech.

"I will say it now, I will say it tomorrow, I will say it next year, that so long as life and sanity remain in me I will say that the whole world is a narrow page to me if I cannot express my honest thoughts."

He closed by making a strong plea to his fellow labor workers to vote the democratic national ticket.

SMITH BACKED TO WIN TOGA

Betting 2 to 1 In South Carolina That He Defeats Evans.

Columbia, S. C., September 7.—Tomorrow the second state democratic primary will be held in South Carolina to select nominees for United States senator, state superintendent of education, railroad commissioner and congressman from the fifth and sixth districts.

The candidates for the senate are ex-Governor John Gary Evans and Hon. E. D. Smith, field agent for the Southern Cotton Association. The fight for the senate has been bitter on both sides, and has aroused great interest throughout the state. It is thought that on this account the vote in the primary will be heavy—probably 110,000.

What wagers have been made on this race are at 2 to 1 on Smith. For state superintendent of education J. E. Swearingen and Stiles R. Mellichamp will be voted for. Banks Laughman, incumbent, and James Cansler, of York county, run for railroad commissioner.

In the fifth district Representative D. E. Finley is opposed by T. B. Butler, and in the sixth district Representative J. E. Ellerbe is running against J. W. Ragsdale. The vote in the first primary held August 25 was 105,000, and it is estimated that between 5,000 and 10,000 voters were prevented from coming to the polls by the excessive rains and destructive floods which marked that day.

The active pallbearers were members of The Union staff, while many of the prominent men present were there both as mourners and as honorary pallbearers. The interment was in Evergreen cemetery.

LONGEST GAME PLAYED AT PONCE DE LEON GOES TO GULLS

Edited by Alex Lynn

LITTLE GORDON BEAT SITTON

Each Gave Up Eight Safe Hits.

Triples by Wheat and Massing in Fifteenth Inning Decided the Result—Moran Back in the Game — Maxwell or Viehahn Today.

WHERE THEY PLAY TODAY.

Mobile in Atlanta, Ponce de Leon. Same called at 3:45 o'clock.

Little Rock in Montgomery.
Memphis in Nashville.

YESTERDAY'S RESULTS.

Mobile 4, Atlanta 2. (15 innings.)
New Orleans 7, Birmingham 6.
New Orleans 4, Birmingham 1.
Memphis 4, Nashville 1. (12 innings.)
Nashville 6, Memphis 3.
Little Rock 10, Montgomery 1.

By Dick Jemison.

The Champs opened up yesterday at Ponce de Leon for the first game of the last home stand of this season, after an absence of three weeks on foreign soil.

Tom Fisher and his Mobile Gulls were the attraction in a scheduled double bill, but only one affair was pulled off owing to the length of the first, fifteen innings.

Mobile 4, Atlanta 2.

The stands were well filled when the first game had been under way but a short while, although there was not such a large crowd present as on Labor day last year, when the banks and every available space was taken by the eager fans.

Phil Sitton was in the box for Atlanta and he pitched good ball all the way through, but opposed to him was a man a little smaller than he, Gordon Hickman, who pitched equally as well, and was fortunate enough to get away with his game.

The fifteen innings played were exciting all the way through, first one team would score and then the other, and the crowd was kept on edge all the time, the Gulls winning out in the fifteenth round on two triples in succession and a sacrifice fly.

Paul Sentell was back in the game at short for Mobile, but was hurt in the tenth inning and had to retire, a change being made in the line-up, Benson going to short, Watson to third, and James to second.

Mobile Scored First.

There was nothing doing in the first inning, although the Champs had a chance to score when Becker walked and Jordan singled to left but Clayton struck out. Moran flied out to center and McMurray forced Jordan at second on a hit to short stop.

In the second inning the Gulls started the scoring without the aid of a hit. Sentell got his base on balls, was sacrificed to second by Sabrie, went to third on Watson's out to first, and scored on a wild pitch.

In the third round the Champs tied the score. Sitton singled to center; went to second on Becker's out, to third on Jordan's out and scored on Sentell's error of Clayton's grounder.

In the fifth the Gulls untied the score again. Watson hit safe to center, after Sabrie had flied out to left, and scored on Massing's long drive to deep center, which Clayton dropped.

The champs tied the score again in the sixth inning. Clayton singled to center and Moran followed suit, but Clayton was caught napping off second by the pitcher a moment later. McMurray got his base on balls and Moran went to second. Wilkes hit to pitcher but no one covered first, and while Hickman outran Wilkes to the sack, Moran scored from second on the play by heady and fast base running.

For eight more innings the scores remained tied in a knot. In the fifteenth inning the Gulls untied the knot and won the game. Wheat, first up, hit to deep right for a three-bagger. Moran played up close for Massing, but the latter fooling him, caught a fast inshoot on the nose and sailed it over Moran's head for three bases, scoring Wheat. He scored a moment later on Hickman's sacrifice fly out to left field.

The Champs could do nothing in their half of the fifteenth and the game ended there. It was the longest game that has been played on the Ponce de Leon diamond and the fans who turned out witnessed a nice article of ball, even though the Champs did not win, but better luck is looked for today.

The second game was started, but after playing two innings it got so dark Lee Garvin yelled to turn on the electric light and Umpire Brown called the game. Johns was in the box for the Champs and was opposed by Becker.

Bill Smith will pitch either Johns or Maxwell today, and Fisher will probably send Beeker back to the slab for his team.

Little Rock 10, Mont. 1.

Montgomery, Ala., September 7.—Only one game of the scheduled doubleheader was played here today, a heavy rain falling at the end of the first game. Little Rock pounced onto Lively in the first inning and batted him out of the box, securing seven runs. Juul relieved him, and was in turn relieved by Bliss, but the visitors had on their batting clothes and won an easy victory.

His home is in San Jose, Cal., and it is believed he will join the California State League, which operates independently of the national baseball agreement.

HAMBURG BELLE WINS CLASSIC

For First Time Connecticut Horse Takes $10,000 Charter Oak.

Hartford, Conn., September 7.—For the first time in the history of the charter oak classic, the $10,000 trot, a Connecticut horse, Hamburg Belle, won the event today. In doing so she not only broke the track record for the race, but also established the world's fastest three-heat time, 2:04 3-4. This feat was witnessed by fully 25,000 people. There were twelve starters with Hamburg Belle and Spanish Queen ruling favorites.

In the first heat Hamburg Belle and Locust Jack made a pretty heat, the mare pulling away in the last few rods of the stretch. Spanish Queen broke badly at the start, and Jack Leyburn was away in the rear. The time was 2:05.

The second heat was just a second slower, the same two horses being in the lead practically all the time. Spanish Queen and Jack Leyburn broke in the first quarter.

The final heat was a walk-over for Hamburg Belle. She trotted beautifully, and was never headed. Her time of 2:04 3-4 was a world's record for a race of this nature. Her time for the half was 1:02, and for the quarter 31 seconds.

The chief event for tomorrow is the Nutmeg $5,000 race. Summaries:

Charter Oak, 2:09 trot, purse, $10,000. Hamburg Belle won in straight heats; Simmons, second; Locust Jack, third. Best time, 2:04 3-4.

2:18 trot, purse $1,200. Nelcyone won in five heats; Composer, second; Prince Kope, third. Best time, 2:13 3-4.

2:04 pace, purse $1,200. Hedgewood Boy won; Baron Grattan, second; Gallagher, third. Best time, 2:05.

"BILLY" PAPKE WHIPS KETCHEL

Knockout Blow Given in Twelfth Round at Los Angeles.

From the Start Papke Had the Better of the Fight, and He Punished Ketchel Badly—Papke Closed Ketchel's Right Eye Early in Fight.

Vernon Areno, Los Angeles, Cal., September 7.—Stanley Ketchel, of Michigan, former middleweight champion of the world, was knocked out in the twelfth round at Jeffries' Vernon arena at 4 o'clock this afternoon by Billy Papke, of Illinois, who is now middleweight champion of the world. It was a case of the Illinois "thunderbolt" against a Michigan "killer," and the "Thunderbolt" won.

Both men entered the ring in apparent perfect condition, and neither had ever been knocked out. Ketchel had won a decision over Papke in a previous bout.

Both men are as clean-looking prizefighters as anyone sees, but the bout ended as one of the bloodiest in ring history.

How the Men Entered the Ring.

Ketchel came in wearing a tattered dressing gown and a worn hunting cap, and trunks of green gauze. He had a feline stride, the smile of an unspoiled boy, a fine brow, wide clear eyes, and a shrewd look of purpose. When Papke came in, he also wore an old dressing gown and a boyish smile. Ketchel was freshly shaven, while Papke was unshaven. Ketchel wore the air of an undefeated conqueror, and was plainly the great favorite of the crowd, which had been betting on him at 2 to 1.

When Papke entered he walked blithely to Ketchel's corner and greeted him with a handshake and a cordial smile, but when James J. Jeffries, the referee, called time and Ketchel walked to the center extending his hand for the shake, Papke ignored the hand and sailed into the Michigan man with the fiery impetuosity which entitled him to be called "Thunderbolt."

The fight was practically over a minute and twenty seconds after the gong sounded. From that time on, it was merely a question as to how long Ketchel would last. Papke tore into Ketchel with such fury that the undefeated champion was simply lifted off his feet four times within the next minute.

Ketchel Badly Punished.

Papke knocked Ketchel to the mat for the count, and from his first knockdown Ketchel never really showed his form. He was a defeated man, dazed, bleeding, struggling from twenty blows in the face, and yet he came back and stayed with a terrible determination. And for at least three rounds he held his own with the victorious challenger. When Ketchel stepped to the corner for the second round it was seen that his right eye was closed. At the next intermission his seconds lanced the eye and sucked the blood, but Ketchel never regained the sight of his right eye. Before the finish the other eye was all but closed, and for the last three rounds he staggered about the ring dizzily like a drunken man, practically blinded.

In the third round Ketchel showed his best form when he forced Papke through the ropes.

In the last round, Ketchel seemed down and out and the gong saved him just as he was knocked through the ropes. Another minute finished him, with Papke almost as strong as when he entered the ring. Ketchel was carried to his dressing room. Both eyes were swollen into great black puffs and completely closed. His lips were cut and swollen to several times their normal size.

MORAN DRAWS WITH ATTELL

Fight at San Francisco Went Twenty-Three Rounds.

There Was Much Vicious Fighting, but Neither Was Able to Put the Other Out—Moran Claims He Broke Right Hand in Second Round.

Colma, San Francisco, September 7. Abe Attell, the champion featherweight of America, and Owen Moran, England's premier boxer, in the same division, fought a draw battle at the Colma open-air arena this afternoon in the presence of about 6,000 spectators.

The battle lasted 23 rounds, and at its conclusion Referee Jack Welch unhesitatingly grasped both lads by the hand, signifying that the fight was a draw. The decision seemed to please the crowd, and there were cheers for each fighter as he wended his way from the ring side. The fight on the whole was rather tame, but this was offset by the cleverness of both fighters.

It was a very even fight, and was marked by Moran's aggressiveness and Attell's cleverness in blocking, and his all-round work from a defensive standpoint. The concensus of opinion would seem to indicate, however, that the Californian did not show his best form of former contests, and that he lacks the dazzling speed which has made him a marvel of cleverness.

After the fight Owen Moran declared:

"I broke my right hand in the second round. After that it was almost useless. At that, I think I won by a mile. I am willing to fight Attell 45 rounds, winner to take all."

A press representative visited the Englishman in his dressing room after the contest, and carefully examined the right arm, which Moran claimed was broken. The arm was badly swollen around the thumb, but it was not possible to verify the claim of a broken arm.

Moran's face was much battered and the left eye was nearly closed as a result of Attell's almost ceaseless prodding. On the other hand, Attell emerged from the fight without a mark. Attell gave out this statement after being informed of Moran's challenge for a return match:

"I will fight no one 45 rounds. I want to live awhile yet. But I will give him a return match for any number of rounds up to 25. I beat him at every stage."

An examination of Attell's right hand disclosed the fact that the middle knuckle had been disjointed.

A resume of the fight by rounds showed that Attell had more or less advantage in nine rounds, Moran was given six, and the balance show even honors.

STRANG WINS AMES TROPHY

Lowell, Mass., September 7.—Racing at breakneck speed and with remarkable good fortune over the roads of this city and the adjoining town of Tyngsboro for more than 250 miles, Lewis Strang, in a sixty-horse power car today left all his competitors far in the rear, and easily won the automobile road race for the Butler Ames trophy.

The exact length of the run was 250.4 miles, comprising twenty-four circuits of a course measuring 10.6 miles. The winner's time was four hours, forty minutes and thirty-four seconds.

Harry F. Grant finished second more than an hour and a half after Strang, and at intervals of a few minutes thereafter, Wm. Bourque finishshed third and George H. Robertson came in fourth. Of the three other entries, Frank L. Lescault and Charles L. Basle, withdrew owing to slight accidents, and Robert Berman was disqualified because outside assistance was accepted in making repairs after an accident. None of the mishaps in which the various cars figured resulted in any injury to the occupants.

Strang was presented by Congressman Butler Ames with the $1,000 trophy for the car winning, and also with $500 for himself from the Lowell Automobile club, under whose auspices the race was held. Grant received $250 and Bourque, $150.

Strang took the lead early and kept it throughout, tearing around lap after lap with utter disregard of the sharp curves, scarcely slackening his speed on the course. His fastest circuit of the course was made on the sixth lap, when he covered the 10.6 miles in ten minutes and 53 seconds. During one hour, early in the race, he covered 53 miles. Strang was the only one of the drivers to go through the contest without a single accident to his machine. The summary:

Lewis Strang, 60-horse power Isotta-Fraschini, time, 4:40:34. Harry F. Grant, 60-horse power Berliet, time, 6:14:50. William Bourque, 38-horse power Knox, time, 6:33:29. George H. Robertson, 50-horse power Fiat, time, 6:38:32.

Firestone took the lead in the first furlong, and keeping a fast pace all the way, won by three lengths. Montfort closed with a rush, and was an easy second, with Dorante third.

Harrigan easily won the Golden selling event. He was bid up to $3,505, and advanced to $1,400 over his entered selling price. The stable bid the customary $5 and kept the colt.

LABOR DAY'S BIG PARADE

to the gunwales with products of a Georgia farm. There was the cotton, the corn, the yam, the peach, the apple, the sugar cane and about everthing a Georgia farmer cares to produce. Seated between the two banks of the agriculturalists' productions were two score of Georgia's happiest offerings to the world—young ladies with rosy cheeks, and happy smiles for those whom they passed.

Then came the farmers from Rockdale, a hundred strong, nearly every member in line wearing the conventional overall, each one carrying over his shoulder a stalk of corn still bearing the ear it had grown. Some shouldered the sugar cane, others carried strings of red pepper pods about their necks or strung from a corn stalk. There were baskets of peaches, buckets of apples, which the planters presented with a smile when some remark from the sidewalk attracted their attention. In all there were nearly, if not quite, two hundred and fifty farmers from the counties indicated in line. A young farmer on a mule, without a saddle, representing an early morning rush to the plowing grounds, attracted much attention.

The Farmers in Line.

But the feature of the farmers' section was an old log cabin—the Uncle Remus story. Upon a wagon had been planted the front of the old log cabin. In front of the door to that antiquated domicile sat an old negro with white hair and white beard. On the playground about him were two kids, illustrative of the rabbit and the fox, while near the old man sat a little boy. As the procession moved the rabbit and the fox hopped about or in other ways attracted the attention of the spectators, while the little boy was apparently listening to the story of the darky.

Barber's cornet band, twenty-two pieces, moved into Peachtree from West Baker, where it had been resting, followed by the stone cutters one hundred strong. Wearing the overalls with blue shirts and cane, and moving with that ease and grace that hard work brings to all hard working men. The section attracted the undivided attention of those in ever block as it moved by. A beautiful banner in red silk, fringed top, bottom and sides, and lettered in large gold lines, introduced the paper hangers to the sidewalks. Eighty strong that body swung along with an ease that indicated a drilled military company. Attired in white trousers with white caps, each carrying a light stick, they appeared a body of "good men of the city."

The painters, decorators and paper hangers, wearing similar uniforms, with a handsome banner in the front line, came in for their share of applause. About 100 were shown in line.

With their president in a buggy leading the line, the journeymen plumbers came next, over a hundred strong. White shirts and white caps distinguished this body of men, every one of whom showed muscle, strength and brawn.

Gas Fitters in Line.

The gas fitters, with a magnificent blue banner, indicating their line of work, came next in order. With white navy caps, white shirts and black trousers every member swinging in unison a small white walking stick, the carpenters and joiners moved by, pleasing those looking on.

Then came the Atlanta branch of granite cutters, following a red banner, with red shirts, white caps and gray trousers.

A second section of the Wedemeyer band led the next division with the International Machinists' Union, sixty strong. It presented a body of men of great strength and of most excellent appearance.

One of the most interesting features of the parade was that presented by the horseshoers. Between sixty and seventy-five men there were and every one was a picture of health, strength and robust manhood. With a military step they moved, not a falter in the entire line. Clad in red shirts, wearing leather aprons and black caps on their heads, every face showed that smile of happiness and contentment which comes with the satisfaction of having done a good day's work. None of the many fine features of that excellent procession attracted more attention than those sturdy blacksmiths.

Next came the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, with machinery, showing how their work was accomplished. Wearing blue overalls, blue shirts and black caps the company made an excellent presentation.

The boilermakers and ship-builders was one of the few organizations the members of which appeared in civil attire. No two members of that section were attired alike. The only point of similarity was the large hammer used by that trade which each had swung over his shoulder.

The International Association of Machinists, with a moving shop, attracted much attention, the organization having a fully equipped shop on a wagon showing clearly what might be called the daily life of the members of the trade.

The carriage and wagon-makers had out a large section, the uniform being black with caps of the same color.

Telegraphers' Association.

The Telegraphers' Association, with banners referring to the troubles that organization has been having for months past, was greeted with loud applause all along the line.

The pressmen's aggregation was given the same greeting from start to the disbandment of the parade.

The Amalgamated Meat Cutters, led by a wagon throwing out sandwiches, was given a hearty greeting. The members of the organization were wearing the white cap and the long cut of striped linen in which they worked and they looked neat and clean enough to invite trade.

Led by two ladies and a gentleman on horseback, the man carrying the banner, the United Garment Workers attracted attention. Two tally-hos, one drawn by six horses, the other by four, loaded to full capacity, carried the ladies of the organization, while immediately behind came fifty to sixty male members in regular marching order.

Then came the Tailors' Union, making as it always does an excellent show.

The Atlanta Typographical Union came next with the members of every chapel in line. The white shirts and white caps of the printer illustrated their lifework surroundings.

Fine Show by Barbers.

One of the happy features of the procession were the barbers. Under umbrellas made of the colors of that line of work, red, white and blue, with immaculate white shirt and a straw hat, the members made a fine show.

The negro band headed the negro feature of the parade and it was one of the best the negroes have so far shown. Immediately after the band came a carriage containing leading labor leaders of that race, and in the line were each of the working bodies in which the colored man has a part.

The line was concluded with a number of trade floats. The Capitola mills presented a wagon illustrative of its work, loaded down with its products. It was drawn by ten mules and the outfit was greatly admired.

The Orr Book Company presented an excellent display on a wagon drawn by four horses.

The Tripod Paint Company had a presentation of what could be accomplished by the use of its goods and it was an excellent show it made.

The Golden Harness Company could not have made a better display.

The Cathcart Transfer Company had in one of its finest wagons an office fully equipped showing what could be done at their place, and right behind came two or three of its best wagons ready for work.

The Parian Paint Company had a dog painted in two or three colors, while behind that dog, led by a negro, came four gray horses which had been painted the same way.

At Rome.

Rome, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—The celebration of Labor day in Rome was by far the most elaborate in this city's history. The parade which occurred at 11:30 o'clock this morning was the longest and made the best display of the kind ever seen in Rome, the procession taking more than twenty minutes to pass a given point. Thousands of visitors filled the city, coming from all sections of north Georgia, and completely filled Broad street during the passage of the parade.

The parade was headed by a detechment of police, followed by the calico cavalry consisting of about thirty ladies and gentlemen of Rome. Then followed the various labor unions and farmers' unions, the Rome fire department and other organizations, after which came the decorated floats representing the various business interests of the city. The procession marched throught the entire length of Broad street and then countermarched, covering about ten blocks of the street. After the parade a large crowd repaired to Desoto park, where the principal address was made by Mr. Bernhardt. A basket dinner was spread, of which everybody was invited to partake.

The following prizes were awarded for best floats in parade: Wright Drug Co., for best mercantile float, $10; Moulders, $5 gavel for union making best appearance; Vans Valley, best farmers' float, $10. Central labor body union float, $10.

Splendid Parade at Savannah.

Savannah, September 7.—(Special.)—Thirty floats, two scores of labor unions, detachments of police and fire department, with many carriages made up the most elaborate parade as part of a Labor day celebration Savannah has seen in many years, filing for many miles through the city streets today.

Alderman C. G. Wilkinson, elected as a labor candidate, was grand marshal, and the parade broke all records by starting on time at the usual hour of 8:30 and finishing its line of march before the hottest part of the day. The horses of the police squads and the fire-fighting machines were gaily decorated and the floats were as ingeniously arranged as they were many.

The city enjoyed its general holiday, the parade being followed by a series of athletic events at Tybee, where some creditable records were made by local athletes. The games all had a long list of entries. The stores all closed at 1 o'clock in the afternoon, and the banks, city and other public buildings were closed all day.

LABOR DAY SPEECHES HEARD BY MANY PEOPLE

Exercises Occurred at Grant Park in the Afternoon, and Over Five Thousand Applauded the Speakers and Their Themes.

Over five thousand knights and ladies of labor gathered in front of the band stand at Grant park yesterday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock to listen to and applaud the speeches of the orators of the day. No priest in cathedral was ever given more strict attention than this vast outdoor gathering gave them, nor has any orator ever been more enthusiastically applauded than were those men who were the guests for the occasion.

It was only a brief space between the time the successful Labor day parade concluded its complex march and the hour set for the speaking and it was a vast tribute to the common cause for which the day was celebrated that so many were present when President Arthur Ardery, of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, and chairman of the Labor day committee, who, after prayer by Rev. H. A. Atkinson, of the Central Congregational church, opened the exercises with the following brief address:

Exercises Are Opened.

"Ladies and Gentlemen and Fellow-Workmen: The chairman of the Labor day committee is not expected to make an address on an occasion of this character, but I cannot refrain from saying a few words touching the parade and all the features connected with the day.

"Let me say in the language of our illustrious and distinguished friend, we are 'delighted.'

"It is appropriate that, in the name of the Atlanta Federation of Trades, we congratulate the local unions on the splendid displays they have made today and the magnificent results of their efforts. The day has been all we could expect. Our members have presented on our streets an object lesson of what trades unionism stands for, their hopes, aspirations and attainments.

"It is also appropriate that I should congratulate our unions on the progress they have made in the past year and the splendid record of achievements as union men and citizens.

"It is my pleasure to here make public an announcement in the name of the Atlanta Federation of Trades of our grateful appreciation of the liberal spirit shown by our citizens generally, whose services and assistance has done much to make this day the great success it has been.

"I must not tire your patience further. We have speakers who will indeed interest you, and again we thank you and bid young and old a hearty welcome. We trust that the kind Master will spare each and every one to witness a similar event in 1909."

Hon. Madison Bell's Address.

Hon. Madison Bell, member of the legislature from Fulton county, was the orator of the day and his address was received with great applause, after which he was roundly congratulated.

"Farmer" J. L. Lee, of Union City, state organizer for the Farmers' Union of Georgia, was the concluding speaker of the day. He stated that he represented 100,000 organized farmers in Georgia who did not envy the city workers their improvements, but were rather banded together to try and get these same comforts and conveniences for themselves, too.

He concluded by stating he shared the oft-quoted statement: "I do not believe that a few are born booted and spurred to ride and millions saddled and bridled to be ridden," but that all should have an equal show.

Mr. Bell's speech, in part, was as follows:

He began by stating that as chairman of the house committee on labor of the general assembly he had championed many measures that inured to their benefit, not because he wished to ingratiate himself into their good will, but because he thought they were right.

Again he congratulated the hosts of labor, because Labor day was being generally celebrated over the country, and declared it was a wise act that legally set aside one day to pay homage to the laboring man.

Continuing he said:

"In unity there is strength; a house divided against itself cannot stand. People whose conditions in life are similar; whose occupations are the same; whose aims and purposes are in common; whose needs and wants are alike, cannot expect relief from oppression unless there exists a brotherhood which musters them under one banner to which they must render allegiance and respect."

He referred to the great and growing demand for a common eight-hour law for labor, and declared that the federal government had seen the wisdom of this demand, and had granted it. He pointed out how long hours robbed the task of its taste and made it a drudgery rather than a pleasure.

"I believe," he continued, "in the near future that the eight-hour day will find its proper place in all legal codes that govern man, and God grant that the time may not be too long postponed."

He declared that organized labor stood for pure sanitary conditions and surroundings, and urged them to continue the fight so vigorously begun.

Next he took up the wonderful fight made in Georgia for the abolition of child labor, and took care to give the full meed of praise to Hon. C. T. Ladson, counsel for the Atlanta Federation of Trades, who had fought so long and so well for it, and to Jerome Jones, "the war horse of the common cause," for the valiant work they had done in securing this legislation.

He attacked that man who would use as a cloak his union card to do some deed which would take years for the union to live down, and he praised the good organized man whose union card meant something higher and nobler to him.

Next he took up the injunction plank of the national democratic party, which promised protection to organized labor, and paid a high tribute to the great commoner, William Jennings Bryan.

In conclusion he said:

"I know of no greater existing evil than that which affects the employment of girls and women in large cities. I deplore the cruel necessity of women working, but when the exigencies of her station in life are such that she must toil for her maintenance, then she should not only receive special consideration in her environment, but should also receive full and just compensation for the labor she performs. A woman who does a man's work should receive the same pay as a man receives. It is a crying shame that in many of our cities women are worked on wages hardly sufficient to keep body and soul together. A crusade should be inaugurated for the abolishment of this condition, for no woman should be made to work for less compensation than will insure her a respectable livelihood.

"By united effort we have forced the children of our state from child slavery forever, and now let us, with hopeful hearts, turn to the salvation of their mothers, and the mothers of the future state.

"Secure in the preservation of the reforms we have already accomplished in our own behalf, let us not be satisfied with what we have ourselves achieved, but let us do battle for the weak and helpless wherever they are found, discarding the obsolete motto, 'live and let live,' and instilling in its place upon our banner the motto of true brotherhood, 'live and help live.'

"I have an abiding faith in the future. I believe that brighter days are dawning for those who compose our industrial and producing classes. Their arduous trials, their unceasing struggles, and their untold hardships in the past, unite to make the history of the laboring people a history of undaunted and undying heroism. With their minds ever free from clouds of prejudice, but full of the understanding that drives the skilled hand to deeds of worth with the knowledge that merit, not gold, is the true measure of mankind, and that the son of the employee of today is the employer of tomorrow, there can be but one future and one reward, for God's benign influence will place the American toilers where they belong, as leaders in our forward march toward a higher and better civilization!"

Fine Program at Columbus.

Columbus, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—With every industrial establishment and practically every store closed Labor day was observed in Columbus by a general suspension of business. Elaborate programs of athletic events, games and contests were carried out at the parks, the features being two ball games, a long racing car, a rifle shoot and athletic contests in which many working people took part.

Labor Day at Statesboro.

Statesboro, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—Labor day passed off quietly in Statesboro, there being no demonstration or program of any kind. The banks were closed and the postoffice observed Sunday hours.

The Day at Macon.

Macon, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—The laboring people of Macon planned and carried out a program in celebration of Labor day that has seldom been equalled in point of elaborateness and interest. A parade a mile long, made up of all classes of organizations among the laboring people, marched through the streets of the business portion of the city shortly after 10 o'clock, and thousands of interested people came down early to catch a glimpse of the procession. From the city to the park the long line of march began with the parade and before long Central park was the scene of many lively amusements that lasted all day.

With the Brotherhood of Railway Carmen making up a line of more than 200 men this union easily took a handsome prize. The march was headed by a platoon of police, and the entire fire department. Officers of the various labor organizations with the mayor and members of the city council followed. Then came the floats of the machinists, boilermakers, printers, barbers, iron moulders, carpenters, car builders, union leather workers, Woodmen of the World and a long line of private business floats.

Baseball, athletic contests and a number of other interesting amusements made up the afternoon program at the park. All day there were immense crowds of people attending. Business houses up town were nearly all shut up for the celebration, and everything worked to make it a complete holiday.

BUTCHERS' ORGANIZATION HAS MADE FINE RECORD

The butchers' organization, which won first prize yesterday in the Labor Day parade for the best appearance, was highly deserving of the honor.

This union is the youngest of the many trade organizations of Atlanta, having been in existence only two years. Its growth has been phenomenal, due, in large measure, to the untiring efforts of its hustling and energetic officers, H. Cohen, financial secretary, and B. H. Karwisch, president.

These gentlemen are at all times wide awake to the interests of the craft, at the same time having the welfare of the consumer at heart, always advocating the keeping and selling of none but the best of meats.

Its membership is composed of up-to-date men—men who know how to kill and prepare the meats so as to reach the table in the most palatable shape.

Such an organization of men conduces to the health of any community, always working harmoniously with the board of health in living up to its requirements for pure foodstuffs.

A distinct and costly feature of their exhibit in the parade was the throwing away of hundreds of pounds of edible ments, daintily prepared, and ready for the store, among the thousands who lined the streets traversed by the parade.

Their numerous friends rejoice with them in receiving the honors they did—a monument to the vim and energy which pervade every member of this flourishing young body of men.

WINNERS OF THE PRIZES IN LABOR DAY PARADE

The prize committee gave first prize in the merchants' floats to the Atlanta Milling Company.

The second prize went to the Golden Harness Company.

The Abbott Furniture Company was awarded the third prize.

The union securing the prize for the best banner was the horseshoers.

The stationary engineers got the second prize for the banner, while the leather workers got the third prize.

For the largest percentage in line the stone cutters came in first and the plumbers second.

The butchers won first prize for best appearance in line, and the painters second, while the garment workers came third.

The blacksmiths were awarded the first prize for the best union float in line, the machinist coming second, and the structural iron workers third.

The farmers got the prize for the largest number in line of march.

The bricklayers were awarded the prize for the negroes making the best appearance in line.

Labor Day at Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., September 7.—Labor day in Birmingham was unusually strenuous this year. In addition to the great picnic at Germania Park the crowds in the city were increased enormously by the reception tendered the first train over the new Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad; the opening of the national convention of postoffice clerks, which is attended by over 500 delegates, and the congressional district teachers' institute, which opened this morning with teachers attending from four counties. While the crowds are the largest seen since the confederate reunion no disorders of moment have been reported.

John Mitchell on the Judiciary.

Marion, Ill., September 7.—John Mitchell, former president of the United Mine Workers of America, addressed two thousand people at the Labor day celebration here. Mr. Mitchell spoke of the rapid advance of laboring classes and denounced the idea that the rich are growing richer and that the poor poorer. He said that recently he had had political ambition, but had abandoned all aspirations in that direction. He spoke highly of the judiciary, but criticised its course in some injunction cases.

He Told Story of Alabama Strike.

Oskaloosa, Iowa, September 7.—President Thomas Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, addressed a monster Labor day celebration here this afternoon. He told the story of the Alabama strike which has just been abandoned and made a deep impression. The industrial and trades union parade was a feature of the day's program. The presence of President Lewis drew people from a radius of a hundred miles.

David Barnes Dead.

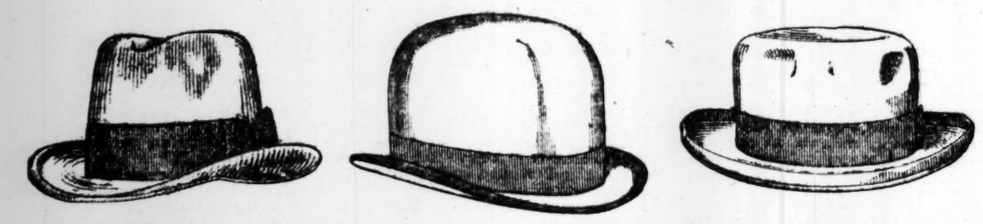

Chicago, September 7.—David H. Barnes, of New Orleans, president of the City Park Jockey Club, of that city, died at his temporary residence in Chicago, No. 368 Wentworth avenue, tonight after an illness of one week.

Members of his family were at the bedside. He had been a resident of Chicago since early summer.

Memphis Station Destroyed.

Memphis, Tenn., September 7.—The union passenger station, situated at the intersection of Main and South streets, was practically destroyed by fire of unknown origin late tonight. The loss is estimated at $50,000, partially covered by insurance.

There never has been and never will be a particle of coffee in Postum, unless put there after leaving the factory!

The strongest proof of the above is an analysis by a real chemist and a visit to the factory where "the door is unbolted" and all may see, as thousands do, how we make Postum, and what we make it of—CLEAN, HARD WHEAT and a small amount of molasses. But—we include the outside coat of the wheat, which contains the Phosphate of Potash—the natural food for brain and nerves—grown in the wheat.

This, and the special roasting and blending process we invented, combine to make the "Postum Flavour" quite like coffee but by careful tasting the real Postum flavour appears distinct. Every Real Chemist knows it. Experience proves

A CALL FOR CAMPAIGN SUBSCRIPTIONS.

The Constitution will receive and acknowledge contributions to the democratic national campaign fund in any amount from one dollar upward, forwarding same promptly to treasurer of the campaign committee.

Thousands of good democrats in Georgia should esteem it a privilege to contribute their portion to the success of the party.

Taft's talks on the tariff have put it to sleep again.

All the big candidates are rich in a wealth of words.

Atlanta, the city of conventions, is extending welcome to them all.

The campaign contributions may be short, but the speeches are long.

If Taft ever gets in, Muldoon will move his training school to the capitol.

The wonder is, Foraker didn't set fire to the whiskers of Hughes in Chio.

Pictures of Taft, as a fisherman, make him look like he was rocking the boat.

If Foraker falls off the Taft band wagon he won't hit hard enough to make an echo.

Admiral Togo doesn't mean to show the American fleet how he entertained the Russian.

Don't talk about "Japanese Conquest of Hawaii." Hobson has been still for two hours.

Florida cannot afford to laugh at the Georgia legislature. It has a legislature of its own.

Governor Hughes is not canvassing the west to explain why he wasn't nominated for president.

The cannibals of Africa are getting ready for the great nature-killer who may soon be "in their midst."

The weather man is forgiven for all past offenses. He gave us great weather for a great Labor Day!

Editor Watterson has ceased to give the democratic party high-ball sentiments from the Manhattan Club.

Speaker Cannon is not greatly in evidence now. He will not hold his own until he gets congress under his thumb.

The Chicago News says "there are no dull moments in the campaign." But is not Senator Beveridge speaking in Ohio?

The silence of Oyster Bay will soon be broken with a dull thud. Jack London has said that an elephant and an oyster can't climb a tree.

The Charleston News and Courier says there is bad luck in a two-dollar bill.

INROADS MADE UPON COTTON.

In calling attention to the wisdom of the recent action of the Farmers' Union at Fort Worth, in reforming its minimum price-fixing method so as to make it adjustable to the constantly changing crop conditions, instead of fixing one inexorable price to prevail during the entire season, The Constitution showed how these radical changes were liable at any time to have more decided effect upon the market than it is possible to predict early in the season, or even for any number of weeks in advance.

Already these material changes in crop conditions are manifesting themselves from causes unanticipated, and reports from almost every cotton-growing section indicate that the estimates of a week or ten days ago will have to be revised by reduction.

The heavy rains of the past two weeks have not been local in character, but have spread over almost the entire cotton belt, and the consequent destruction, which has been extraordinarily heavy, has not yet had time to find its way into official or semi-official reports.

In addition to this, reports from numerous sections indicate extraordinary activity on the part of destructive pests, which are, more than ever, injuring the plant just as it is coming into fruitage.

The Constitution is in receipt of constant communications to this effect, showing that these destructive conditions are more or less general. Following is a sample of those which have been coming in daily within the period indicated:

Editor Constitution: The cotton crop throughout this section of Alabama is the poorest for years. An excessively wet spring delayed the growth and interfered with the proper culture of the plant, making the crop late. The hot weather in August, which was extreme and continued, parched the leaves, stopped the growth and caused the plant to shed every thing but the bolls. What is left is all opening at once, many bolls prematurely and very small. This is the general condition on all grades of land throughout this part of the state. You will remember the insistent predictions of last year by cotton buyers, that the crop of 1907-08 would be 13,000,000 bales, though it turned out about 11,500,000. The south is lied out of $50,000,000 every year by these predictions of "bumper" crops. There may be good crops elsewhere, but not in this part of the country. E. P. MORRISSETT.
King, Monroe County, Ala., September 5, 1908.

Advices of this nature have come from almost every cotton-growing section between the Atlantic seaboard and the Mississippi.

A recent canvass of the crop situation in Georgia, the second of the cotton-producing states, showed extensive destruction from rains and pests, with a slump of at least half a million bales, as compared with last year's production.

Even with Texas doing as well as last year, which is extremely doubtful, the destruction east of the Mississippi is already sufficient to cause material revision in the estimates upon which present market conditions are based.

The chances for a big crop this year have been practically obliterated within the past two weeks.

It is now extremely doubtful if last year's production throughout the cotton belt will be increased by even a single bale.

LABOR DAY AND LABOR'S OPPORTUNITY.

Throughout the country the industrial army of peace celebrated Labor's holiday. The most perfect weather was enjoyed here and elsewhere.

In every large city of the United States thousands of men marched under clear September skies amid banks of cheering humanity, proudly displaying the implements of their trade and bearing banners that identified them with their occupations. The music of bands kept time for marching feet, but more significant still was the music of hammer and anvil that was heard along the line of march.

Here in Atlanta the parade and program of the day were far in advance of past achievements. From every standpoint the celebration was a magnificent success and reflected credit upon those who originated and carried it through. Artistic floats, patriotic speeches, orderly, well-appearing and contented-looking workers evinced the dignity of toil and the well-being of the workers.

In the twelve months which have lapsed since the last first Monday in September industrial depression has shaken business to its foundations; but the brighter skies of Labor Day were symbolical of the rapidly brightening outlook.

Business is rapidly resuming normal proportions; the army of toilers is fast replacing the army of the idle; financial conditions are marked by returning stability; the wheels of industry are turning again, and every sign points to a prosperous year.

Labor's greatest possession is the ballot. This year an unusual opportunity and a patriotic duty confronts it. The partnership between the republican party and the great monopolies which control production is becoming more and more notorious. This year, as usual, that party's efforts are directed at pleasing the trusts rather than the men in the industrial ranks.

The republican platform has an alleged labor plank, which is rendered nugatory and valueless by its excepting clause.

The democratic platform is outspoken on subjects of the utmost importance to labor—particularly the injunction and tariff reform. The platform declaration was, as to the injunction, not only acceptable to, but it was written by, the leaders of labor.

The contentions of labor which have been urged from time immemorial have been abundantly and cordially acceded to, and the workers now have the best opportunity presented to them in years to give the reins of government into the hands of that party which has always been the representative of the people.

In his Labor Day speech in Chicago, William Jennings Bryan, the democratic nominee, declares:

"The democratic party proclaims that each individual should receive from society a reward for his toil commensurate with his contribution to the welfare of society, and unless some other party can do the work better, the democratic party should have the support of all."

Here is one of the most timely reflections and one of the most valuable, that the Labor Day just celebrated produced.

REASON FOR THE GROWERS' ORGANIZATION.

As if in direct answer to the charge of our superheated Boston contemporary that the peach growers of Georgia contemplated the formation of a trust for controlling the price of their product, a correspondent of The New York Journal condenses the whole reasoning back of the projected peach growers' organization in the following language:

Referring to one of the large industries of the south—fruit raising—every farmer ships his fruit to some market he happens to fancy whenever his fruit is ripe. The farmer knows but very seldom what the local condition of the fruit market in this particular center may be, and by the time his fruit arrives there might be a glut or famine in peaches, watermelons, canteloupes, strawberries, or whatever else there is.

The correspondent in question is Mr. F. J. Lisman, a banker of New York city, with an interest in several of the railroads traversing the fruit belt of the southern states.

His personal visits to the orchards and his observation of the markets in New York qualify him to speak with authority on the present condition of what should be one of the most remunerative industries of this section.

It is to do away, once and for all, with the glut to which Mr. Lisman refers, and to inaugurate method and system in distributing the peach crop of this state, that the growers will gather here on September 10.

Another year of the haphazard procedure which has heretofore characterized the marketing of Georgia peaches would probably result in a forfeiture of the progress this great industry has recorded against difficult obstacles for the past ten years.

ROOSEVELT'S COMMISSION INDORSED.

The plan of President Roosevelt to have a commission of distinguished Americans investigate the conditions of rural life in this country, to the end of bettering the individual environment of the farmer, is to have the cooperation of the upwards of three million members of the Farmers' Union.

This action was decided upon at the recent national convention held in Fort Worth, when a resolution indorsing the Roosevelt commission and its purposes was passed without a suggestion of opposition.

In a degree the propaganda of the Union had already forestalled the intention of the president. Since its founding the Union, through its local and state organizations, has worked systematically at improving the conditions under which its members live. Its lecturers, its educational committees and its newspapers have stressed the desirability of community cooperation in the endeavor to solve the many sociological, intellectual and educational problems confronting the agriculturist as a class throughout the country.

The placing of official sanction upon Mr. Roosevelt's project, however, by the most influential farmers' organization in the country, will assure a more immediate materialization of its beneficial aims than even its most enthusiastic advocates had trusted themselves to predict.

Brings his golden store to town;
The wigwams of the fodder
On the garnered hillsides glow,

LETTERS FROM PEOPLE.

Colonel Benjamin Hawkins.

Editor Constitution: Colonel Benjamin Hawkins has recently been the subject of press notices and especially in your today's issue, referring to his neglected grave. You say that a brief account of his career—"has been dug out of an ancient volume"—by Governor Candler, compiler of colonial records, of which you give a brief outline. It may be of interest to know that in the "Miscellanies of Georgia," by Absalom H. Chappell, published in 1874, an entire chapter is devoted to Colonel Hawkins, replete with the details of his illustrious career, giving an elaborate sketch of his life and character. Wheeler's History of North Carolina, Sparks' Life of Washington, and sundry state papers are referred to by Mr. Chappell. He also makes reference to his own grandfather, who was a contemporary and great admirer of Colonel Hawkins. T. J. C.

AN AUXILIARY STEAM PUMP.

Matter Laid Before Augusta Council by Mayor Dunbar.

Augusta, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—The city council met tonight in regular session. Mayor Dunbar laid before the council the matter of installing an auxiliary steam pump to insure an adequate water supply in case of flood. The said plant would cost sixty or seventy-five thousand dollars. Upon motion the matter was referred to the mayor and the canal and waterworks committee with power to act.

An ordinance providing for a $200 near beer license went to the third reading on objection.

Council was informed that dirt to fill the canal holes was costing the city 7½ cents per cubic yard, which, in the mind of the council, is an exorbitant figure. A committee has been appointed to confer with landowners.

The mayor notified the council that the domestic water supply would be turned on Tuesday and the canal would be able to carry water probably in three weeks for operating mills.

The ordinance providing for $1,000 tax on street railways went to second reading.

KELLER TRIED AT SAVANNAH.

Members of Court-Martial Won't Divulge Nature of Report.

Savannah, Ga., September 7.—(Special.) Charged with shooting three men and firing promiscuously on the troops train returning from the Chickamauga encampment, Musician Lamar Keller, troop A, First cavalry, was put on trial today before the court-martial ordered convened by Governor Smith and presided over by General Hugenen. The trial was completed after three sessions, ending at 11 o'clock tonight.

Trooper Ward Sipple, of the Georgia Huzzars, will be the only old cavalry man tried. His case comes up today. Members of the court-martial refuse to divulge the nature of their report on the case against Keller.

Postoffice Is Robbed.

Breckenridge, Mo., September 7.—The postoffice here was broken into early this morning and about eleven hundred dollars' worth of stamps and a small amount of cash was secured by the robbers. Dynamite was used to blow open the safe. The robbers are supposed to have left town in a buggy, but no trace of them has been discovered and it is not known how many were in the gang.

SOME "OLDEST INHABITANTS" TALK OF WEATHER FORECASTS

Oldest inhabitants, soothsayers of the weather, nature students and the like have been vastly interested in the editorial printed in The Constitution Sunday morning calling upon them to send to this paper their prophesies for the coming season, with their reasons for thinking there would be an early or late fall, moderate or heavy winter and their reassons for their predictions.

Forecaster von Harrman, of the weather bureau, had a day off yesterday, and in his unofficial capacity, without referring to high barometer, low barometer, rain fall or wind pressure gauges said:

"I think the signs portend a moderately early fall. My reasons for this is the fact that while we had some hot weather the past summer, taken as a whole it has been most pleasant and there were no continued days of heat. In consequence, the ground is not stored up with heat and what there is will soon pass away and let fall come on moderately early."

J. L. Hight, of Walton county, one of the best known farmers in that section, was discussing the portends and said:

"Predicting the weather is like the story about the New York drummer who came down home and told a merchant who owed him a bill if he would pay him, then, he would tell him how cotton would be selling in October. The merchant scraped up the money and paid him. The drummer took the merchant off and whispered: 'It will be either higher or lower than it is now, I don't know exactly.' That is the way it is with the weather. We will either have a late or early fall, a mild or hard winter, I can't tell which."

Heard Locusts Holler.

Jasper Newton Smith, owner of "The House that Jack Built," the "Bachelor's Domain," and his own monument already set up in Oakland cemetery, said:

"We will have frost by October 28. Now you mark what I tell you. I heard locusts holler about the first of August, and it is a sure sign, for they never start to holler until three months before frost. I know lots of farmers who always set the day down, and it never fails. Early frost means a hard winter, for I never knew it to fail that when there was a mild summer there was a hard winter to follow."

Uncle Jack was at the "Bachelor's Domain" when he made the prediction and was calling down maledictions upon forgetful folks.

"Why," said he, "I had a carriage engaged to ride in the Labor day parade with my granddaughter, and the dusky driver forgot where he was to come, and missed me."

He (Uncle Jack) had covered his silk beaver with white satin, and like little Tommy Tucker, stuck a long white plume in it, and was all ready for the parade. At 10 o'clock he limped to a nearby garage, hired a 60-horse power automobile and went schooting after his granddaughter. He got her, but the parade had started and he was cut off. He couldn't get in line with an automobile of such high power, and he had to sit and watch it.

'Missed the parade and had to pay $7 for the car," he concluded.

Look Out for Early Frost.

Eb Hazzard, who lives on the Howell Mill road, said:

"Look out for an early frost. I think it is coming about the middle of October. We have had our first fog, and that always comes just six weeks before the first frost. This means a hard winter. I have gone by fogs all my life, and I never knew it to fail."

J. K. Wilson, a confederate veteran and keeper of the cyclorama at Grant park, said:

"We used to have two squirrels that played in front of here, and we used to watch them store away nuts, and that was a pretty good sign as to how the winter would be. But they have scampered to the other side of the park, and we have to depend on the weather man for predictions. But we still have today a way of telling about rain. Watch the sun rise in the morning, and when the sky is clear, if you see clouds run across the face of the moon, watch out for rain before the sun sets.

PEACH GROWERS MEET IN ATLANTA NEXT WEEK

They Have Learned That Cooperation and Organization Are Necessary for Good Results.

On Thursday, September 10, peach growers from every section of the state will gather in Atlanta to perfect an organization which promises to work wonders among their ranks in the future.

Already it has been pointed out to them that cooperation is the keynote of success and unless they unite in an effort to get the greatest good for the greatest number very little good can result.

With this thoroughly in mind the more prominent growers of the state have been busy evolving plans for organization whereby the desired results may be accomplished.

In an effort to accomplish at one session all that is desired plans have been written out and many printed for general perusal.

It is impossible to handle them all, but the widely variant ones are being used as feeders for study.

The following interesting article has been sent in by J. W. Frederick, of Marshallville, Ga., which will doubtless prove of interest to many.

Some Prices of Peaches.

Editor Constitution: Referring to your editorial in today's Constitution headed "Not a Peach Trust," in which you so admirably refute the unwarranted assertion of The Boston Advertiser, I am reminded that for several days the past season peaches were double the price in Boston as compared to New York, all for the want of a proper distribution—and I think I have the "returns" which verify this statement. So that if The Advertiser's illogical conclusions were really true, such a union would inure to the advantage of his own community, in that distribution would equalize prices.

Statewide Union and One Distributing Center Necessary.

The Central of Georgia railway very promptly and generously during the peach season posts each day a bulletin, giving the number of cars and their destination which left the state the previous day, but it is little of value to the shipper, as the following actual occurrence of the past season will illustrate: A shipper came into town, examined the bulletin and finding a large number of cars routed to New York and Philadelphia, and only one to Baltimore, straight way sends to Baltimore. Next morning he notices in the bulletin that seventeen shippers from other parts of the state acted as he had, and thus had overloaded the Baltimore market worse than either of the others. Moral: The absolute necessity of a central distributing agency with power to reroute a car at any point in transit.

The wonder is the business has thrived at all under the present slipshod methods.

GOVERNOR INVITED TO SIT WITH PRISON COMMISSION

Chairman Turner Wishes Governor Present When Investigations Are Made Wednesday.

Governor Hoke Smith has been formally invited to sit with the members of the state prison commission on Wednesday when the charges of misconduct of misdemeanor convict camps by the authorities of Turner and Worth counties will be under investigation.

The invitation was extended by Chairman J. S. Turner. The governor has not yet replied, but will do so this morning.

The county authorities of Turner and Worth counties are charged with violating the rules prescribed by the prison commission for the working of misdemeanor convicts. They have been cited to appear and show cause why they ignored these rules.

Any county which permits the operation of "wildcat" camps is subject to a fine of $200. The commission will inquire into the existence of these camps in the counties named.

Fine Opening at Gainesville.

Gainesville, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—The city public schools opened this morning with an enrollment of 747 pupils. Superintendent T. H. Robertson had made every preparation beforehand for the opening, and the work started off nicely.

Many improvements have been made at the public school building for this fall's session. Another room has been fixed up, and this has been equipped with new desks. The tenth grade, which is the highest in the system, and which is in charge of Professor Ray Robertson, as principal had twenty-three students enrolled this morning. Superintendent Robertson believes the number to enter for the term will reach 900.

Countess Kills Herself.

Paris, September 7.—Countess De Sabatier, prominent in Parisian society, committed suicide by shooting yesterday. The act, it is believed, was the result of nervous excitement, from which the countess has been suffering for a long time.

NORMAL SCHOOL OPENS FOR TEACHERS TODAY

On Friday Next Children Making Application Will Be Examined at the Schools.

The teachers of the normal school will begin work in the Boys' High school this morning preparatory to the opening of the public schools on next Monday.

The normal school was to have begun its work yesterday, but the board of education allowed the teachers a holiday in order that they might join in the celebration of Labor day.

The work on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of this week will be taken up in making preparations for the new year. On Friday the teachers will hold examinations in their respective schools of all applicants and will assign pupils to the different grades.

All children who have not been to school before and will enter the first grade will not be examined. It will be necessary to examine children who have recently moved into the city or who have never attended school before in Atlanta and children who dropped out of school and who wish to return. All children who were absent from school on the last day of the previous session without excuse will also be required to stand an examination before they will be accepted as students again.

SPLENDID OPENING OF GORDON INSTITUTE

Nearly Five Hundred Students Were Present at the Opening on Yesterday.

Barnesville, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—Gordon institute broke all records in its opening today, its enrollment being at least 25 per cent larger than ever before in spite of the fact that the sixth district agricultural school is now in operation with sixty students.

It was an inspiring scene which greeted President Joseph D. Smith and faculty in the auditorium with nearly 500 students and several hundred citizens present for the opening exercises.

Students are still arriving on every train. Addresses were made by President Smith, Rev. O. L. Martin, Rev. J. O. Grogan, Professor C. M. Neel and Professor E. Albert Smith. Much enthusiasm prevailed over the extraordinary attendance and the fine condition of the institution.

TWO HURT IN AN ACCIDENT.

Atlantic Coast Line Train No 52 Was Derailed.

Columbia, S. C., September 7.—(Special.)—Atlantic Coast Line train No. 52, Charleston to Greenville, met with an accident near Garys, on the Columbia, Newberry and Laurens railroad about 1 o'clock this afternoon, the tender of the engine and the mail and baggage cars leaving the track.

Mail Clerk J. L. Killian, of Greenville, was struck by a stove in the car, and was painfully but not seriously hurt. Baggage Master J. L. Carver, also of Greenville, was injured by an iron safe striking him in the abdomen. The extent of his injuries have not yet been learned, but they are not thought to be serious. None of the passengers were hurt beyond a severe shaking up.

The derailed train was met by southbound passenger train No. 53 and a transfer connection made. The breaking of a beam caused a second accident at Chapin, delaying the train for five hours additional.

DROWNED IN MOBILE RIVER.

Two Young Men Went for a Sail Sunday Night.

Mobile, Ala., September 7.—A. J. Benzinger, of Cincinnati, a fresco painter, engaged in work on the new Battle house, and Frank Moffett, of this city, two young men, went out for a ride on Mobile river Sunday night.

About midnight the captain of the tug Dorothy reports he was run into by a yawl containing two men. The last seen of the men they were clinging to the tow rope of a barge of coal being towed to Fort Morgan. It is believed the men were drawn under the barge by the heavy current and suction. The yawl was found today floating around in the river, but the bodies of the men have not been recovered.

Benzinger has a wife and several children in Cincinnati and was one of the best known fresco artists in the country. A reward of $50 has been offered by his employing company for his body.

E. A. WAXELBAUM DIES AT CHICAGO

He Was One of Macon's Most Prominent Business Men.

Brown House, Macon, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—E. A. Waxelbaum, one of the best known business men of the community, died in Chicago yesterday from an illness which overtook him while he was away with Mrs. Waxelbaum taking a summer rest from business. He had gone to New York several days prior to changing, and went thence to Michigan, but later to Chicago. Early after his departure letters from his wife to friends at home revealed that he was severely ill. Just before the message yesterday announcing his death, there was another letter giving hopeful accounts of his improvement. He was in a hospital where he went after breaking down. Overwork added much to his lack of strength to battle with disease.

E. A. WAXELBAUM,
Prominent Macon Business Man Who Died in Chicago Sunday.

Accompanied by his brother, Gates Waxelbaum, and his wife, the body will arrive in Macon tomorrow morning, and the funeral preparations will then be made. The announcement of the death has caused deep sorrow here, for the community has few business men with more enterprise and hustle than had this man.

He was a native of Oswego, N. Y., born there forty years ago. He came to Macon in 1888 and entered business. At his death he was a member of the dry goods firm of Waxelbaum & Brother, one of the largest in the community. He was a member of several secret orders, among them being the Elks and B'Nai B'Rith. He was a public-spirited man, who gained an acquaintanceship with nearly all prominent business people of the state.

A reception was tendered to the deaf-mutes of Atlanta by Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Christian, at their home, 281 Highland avenue, last night. Almost all the guests were deaf-mutes, but their enjoyment of the evening was none the less real than if they could speak as hearing persons do.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian were married at Chattanooga on the 3d instant, and this reception marks the home coming of the bride and her taking place with friends in the city.

Many beautiful bridal presents were shown and admired, and all were happy as if they had been with them when the ceremony was performed.

Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. W. A. West, Mr. and Mrs. Wade H. Davis, Misses Margaret Magille, Ella Groom, Annie Phillips, Belle Long, Messrs. Ed Malone, Leonard Dickerson, Will E. Gholdston and Henry Ligon, Mr. George Christian and daughters and Mr. W. F. Crusselle.

84 CASES ARE MADE BY POLICE ON LABOR DAY

Eighty-four police cases were made between 8 o'clock yesterday and midnight. There were sixteen drunks, eleven of whom were white men and one a white woman. The remainder of the offenses were for disorderly conduct. Chief Jennings said that it was an unusually quiet Labor day considering the character of the offenses, but that it was nearly twice the number of average daily cases made.

SUPERVISORY POSTAL EMPLOYEES' CONVENTION

First Annual Convention Met Yesterday at Louisville and Will Continue Today.

Louisville, Ky., September 7.—The National Association of Supervisory Postal Employees assembled for its first annual convention here today, about one hundred delegates participating. The sessions will be continued tomorrow. Today's work was all directed toward perfecting the organization, a constitution and by-laws being adopted.

The object of the association as explained in the preamble are to better the condition of the heads of departments in the various postoffices throughout the country, do away with unnecessary work, promote uniformity of method in handling business, etc. The only struggle came over the adoption of a clause providing that one of the objects of the organization should be to work for increased salaries when judged necessary. The clause was finally adopted over the protest of some delegates who claimed that it might bring the organization within the scope of the postoffice departments forbidding certain associations of that character.

NOTED SPECIALIST KILLS SELF WITH SUBTLE DRUG

Dr. Brooks Made a Previous Attempt Saturday Night to Commit Suicide.

New York, September 7.—A man who represented himself to be Dr. C. H. Brooks, once a noted cancer specialist of Portland, Maine, committed suicide today in Mills Hotel, No. 3, by taking some subtle drug, the nature of which could not be learned, and tonight it was learned that the suicide was the same man who last Saturday night tried to end his life in the rectory of the Church of the Holy Innocents in West Twenty-sixth street. Two priests at the rectory saw the man trying to cut his throat with a razor and held him until a detective arrived.

Daniel Madden, a hotel detective, who had been called in by the priests, accompanied Dr. Brooks to the Mills Hotel and paid for a room for him for two days. The priests gave Dr. Brooks some money to pay his living expenses, and believed they had reasoned him out of his desire to commit suicide.

REGATTA ON THE POTOMAC.

Most Important Event Won by Washington Oarsmen.

Washington, September 7.—The nineteenth annual regatta of the Middle States' Rowing Association was held on the Potomac today under the auspices of the Potomac River Regatta Association, and favored by the most ideal weather conditions. There was scarcely a ripple on the water, except when some pleasure boat dashed along with a merry crowd of spectators. The regatta drew an unusually large attendance, and the cheers that went up from the thousands who lined the shores when their favorite crew won, made the river echo.

The most important event was the junior eight-oared race, won by the Potomacs of Washington, with Arundel, of Baltimore, second. The best time was made by the New York Athletic Club in the senior eight-oared race, with the Potomac a close second, the former winning by four seconds in 4:58. The closest race was that between the Nonpariels of New York, and the West Philadelphias, the former winning by 2-5 of a second.

The Virginia Boat Club of Richmond was entered in the junior eight-oared races, but made no showing.

The foreigners participated in the races did not score a win, being outclassed by the home oarsmen.

HITCHCOCK TO TAKE UP SITUATION IN WEST VIRGINIA

National Committee Hopes to Patch Up a Truce Until After the National Election.

New York, September 7.—The West Virginia governorship nomination which is of so much concern to the republican national committee because of the possible ill-effect upon the national ticket if it is not settled so as to unite the two republican factions of the state, will be taken up by Chairman Hitchcock on Wednesday.

He has not yet received the report of the special committee which has been investigating the case, but it will be laid before him tomorrow. The refusal of Judge Goff to accept the nomination if both Swisher and Scherr withdrew is not taken as final by officials of the national committee, and they still hope that some settlement of the controversy along that line may be effected.

The purpose of such an arrangement is not to compel the two factions to harmonize their differences but to bring about a suspension of hostilities until after the presidential election. It would mean postponement of the contest between the factions. It is hoped that there can be an absolute adjustment of differences at this time, and members of the national committee expect that the fight for supremacy would be renewed before another state convention.

DUFFEY AGAIN WRITES LETTER

Vigorously Criticises Mr. McMichael and Praises Mr. Pound.

Quotes a Certain Florida Newspaper on Lobbying—Refers to Mr. Robeson—Is Sorry for the Country Public Schools.

Editor Constitution: There are phases of the educational situation in Georgia that are so perfectly outrageously wrong that it is astounding that some disgusted citizen has not long ago directed the public's attention to them. The writer has been patiently studying the conditions during the past five years, and he has collected a large and varied assortment of facts that are beyond dispute, and he will no longer withhold some of them from the public.

In Sunday's Constitution, the writer made some slight allusions to school books and school book agents. He referred to the efforts to defeat Mr. Holder's bill to postpone the school book adoption made by Mr. E. H. McMichael, member of the legislature from Marion county, chairman of the house education committee, and agent of Maynard, Merrill & Co., or C. E. Merrill Co., school book publishers.

The writer has often heard that this able statesman, Mr. E. H. McMichael, is known among school book agents as the "Ransey Sniffles" of the school book business. It is asserted by these men that he delights to stir up trouble for his competitors by taking tales of their alleged misdoings to governors and state school commissioners and members of state school book commissions. It is also asserted by the same authorities that he loves to spread abroad thrilling stories of how, upon urgent invitation, he advised this governor, or that governor, what course to pursue in certain educational crises.

While this able statesman, Mr. E. H. McMichael, was using his utmost endeavors to defeat the postponement bill, it is alleged by competent authority that he charged up and down and around and about the halls of the legislature and told many members that "lobbying" was going on in favor of the bill. He privately mentioned some names which, up to the present, he has not publicly mentioned. While engaged in this business he did not say that he was the agent of Maynard, Merrill & Co., school book publishers, but he made it very plain that he was virtuously "agin lobbying," especially when it was not in accord with his wishes.

The writer invites the people of Georgia to look upon the appended word picture of this able statesman, Mr. E. H. McMichael, as he appeared in action in a neighboring state; the picture being taken, verbatim, from an editorial in The Lake City (Fla.) Index, of April 28, 1905, sent to the writer, at the time, by a distinguished educator of the Flowery State:

"Last week, one E. H. McMichael, agent of Maynard, Merrill & Co., of New York, took up his quarters at the Leon hotel in Tallahassee, and at once began to be perniciously active against the McCreary bill.

"The Index has troubled itself to look into this man's antecedents. He is entitled to the prefix 'Honorable' to his name—'Hon.' E. H. McMichael—for he is a member of the next legislature of Georgia. Further, he was a member of the last legislature of Georgia—and he was then, and is now, an agent of Maynard, Merrill & Co., of New York, publishers of text-books for schools and colleges. Considering that he is a Georgia law-maker, is it not astonishing that he should be in Tallahassee, a member of 'The Third House,' fighting one text-book bill and 'heeling' for another? And at the same time under oath to deal impartially in his own state on such measures?

"Queer?

"Very, very, queer!

"It is a shame and a disgrace that any member of a legislature of a sister state should come into Florida and do the lobbying that this man, McMichael, did. He fairly made the atmosphere of Tallahassee blue with his denunciations of one uniformity scheme and his praise of another. He, and all others like him, should be requested to leave Tallahassee and to stay away, and The Index is constrained to believe that Georgia would do well to keep a wary eye on the man."

The foregoing is a very mild exposure of this able statesman's, Mr. E. H. McMichael, legislative habits outside of Georgia. Inside of Georgia, he is a member of the legislature—verb. sap. The writer has other facts in this connection even more surprising than those herein related, and he will make them public before the leaves begin to fall.

The people of Georgia are now confronted with the unhappy prospect of a general change of school books, at an immense expense to themselves, all because this able statesman, Mr. E. H. McMichael, and a powerful lobby of other school book agents, used their utmost efforts to defeat the Holder postponement bill. The writer has the names of these lobbyists, and he purposes to give them to the public in due time.

In his communication in Sunday's Constitution, the writer endeavored to express his high appreciation of State School Commissioner Jere M. Pound's warning to the county school commissioners against any "interest" that might be about to make an insidious assault upon the children, or the schools, of Georgia, and he now desires to recur to the subject.

It must, by this time, be apparent to the people of Georgia that one "interest" that is vitally concerned with school books is securely intrenched in the legislature, and another in the Georgia Educational Association; for surely everybody now knows that Mr. E. H. McMichael, agent of Maynard, Merrill & Co., or C. E. Merrill Co., school book publishers, is chairman of the house education committee, and that prince of good fellows and exquisitely witty raconteur, Mr. L. B. Robeson, agent of Ginn & Co., school book publishers, is an important confidential officer of the Georgia Educational Association. Now "to our muttons once more," as the French would say if they spoke English:

State School Commissioner Pound has recently had more than one opportunity to observe the aforementioned "interests" at work, and no doubt he watched the work with deep concern and entire disapproval.

For instance: When that very generally and very justly condemned scheme was concocted to put the public schools of Georgia and all their important interests in the hands of an irresponsible oligarchy, that scheme known as the "McMichael (E. H.) Bill to Change the State Board of Education," the preliminary work was entrusted to a committee of educators whose names follow, and, perhaps, to some others not now remembered by the writer: Professor T. J. Woofter, of the state university; Professor Jere M. Pound, then of the Milledgeville Normal School; Professor E. W. Childs, of the Sixth District Agricultural School, and Professor D. L. Earnest, of the Athens Normal College. Some time in the course of the tinkering with this McMichael bill, so called because that able statesman made himself its special, eager and unfaltering champion, Mr. L. B. Robeson, agent of Ginn & Co., school book publishers, also member of the board of trustees of the Georgia Educational Association, sent a letter, or some sort of message, to one of the educators whose names are given above, in which Mr. Robeson said, in substance: "Don't do a thing in the matter of the bill to change the state board of education until you have seen me."

Taking it for granted that one so alert as State School Commissioner Pound must know which one of the educators on that committee received that letter, or message, from Mr. L. B. Robeson, agent of Ginn & Co., school book publishers, etc., the writer respectfully requests State School Commissioner Pound to make the name of that educator public. The writer respectfully requests, also, that the people of Georgia keep their eyes on this matter, to the end that they may have the explanation of it—the explanation that the writer purposes to see is eventually placed before every citizen of the state.

Another instance: On the 27th of July, 1908, Professor T. J. Woofter, of the State University, and, perhaps, some other educators, were in conference with State School Commissioner Pound in his office in the state capitol. The subject of the conference was the "McMichael Bill to Change the State Board of Education." Mr. L. B. Robeson, agent of Ginn & Company, school book publishers, etc., got into communication with the state school commissioner's office at this very time, and asked to see Professor Woofter. Professor Woofter would not go to Mr. Robeson's office; so Mr. Robeson went to the state school commissioner's office. Thereupon occurred a highly interesting conversation, details of which the writer has in his possession. Was it not strangely unfortunate that a school book agent should have had a voice in that conversation; and was not State School Commissioner Pound justly grieved because a representative of a directly concerned commercial "interest" took part in that conversation, genial and altogether lovely though it is freely acknowledged that the aforesaid representative is?

The writer has at hand many instances like the foregoing; many, indeed, far more interestingly suggestive. He will give them to the public, sooner or later; certainly when he goes on the stump next year, and the following year, to advocate his candidacy for the office of state school commissioner.

For five years, certain school book "interests" have had far too much influence in the educational affairs of Georgia. There never was anything to equal the conditions anywhere else in this country. The writer has been gathering the facts since 1902. He purposes to get them fully before the public in the next twelve or eighteen months.

It may have been presumption upon the writer's part to offer advice to the Georgia school book commission, as he did in his communication in Sunday's Constitution; and so he will offer no more. But, he asks the public to consider the following facts:

The country public schools of Georgia have been in a practically orphaned state since 1902. State School Commissioner Merritt was described by Dr. Mark Johnston, in a speech at Camilla, in March, 1906, as "a misfit." The writer does not indorse this harsh characterization; but he does say that State School Commissioner Merritt did not advance the country public schools one inch. State School Commissioner Pound is an able educator and an eloquent speaker; but his whole educational experience has been obtained in a big semi-private, semi-public town school, a normal school, a college, and in a local system of public schools where his contact with country public schools was purely supervisory. The writer doubts whether State School Commissioner Pound ever taught a day in a genuine country public school. Under State School Commissioner Merritt and State School Commissioner Pound, the almost entire tendency of public school administration in Georgia has been under the influence of the State University and the town, or city public school systems. These institutions are practically completely independent of the general public school system of the state, and yet they have dominated the administration of the affairs of the country public schools. There has been no sort of real sympathy between the state school commissioner's office and the country public schools. Even in the adoption of school books, participation has been denied the country public schools. The sub-text-book commission of 1903 had as a member not one teacher of a country public school. Professor Woofter was a university professor; Professor Gibson was a city school superintendent; Professor Smith was a principal of a town school; Professor Frederick was principal of a town school; and Professor Childs was a county school commissioner of Randolph county and lived in the biggest town in the county.

The writer was a country school teacher, and then he was a county school commissioner for sixteen years of a county entirely without large towns. He knows from long daily experience that the country public schools of Georgia are in a sadly collapsed and ineffective state, and he knows this is so because the whole plan of administration is radically wrong. There are plenty of well-educated, successful teachers of country schools in Georgia, but they get no encouragement from the public school administration. They stay away from the Georgia Educational Association because they look upon it as beridden by school book interests. When did anybody ever see such splendid educators, country school teachers though they be, as Claude Gray, of Henry county; B. K. Scott, of Muscogee county; J. O. Pettis, of Fayette county; J. W. Butts, of Fannin county, and hundreds of others that might be mentioned, at a meeting of the Georgia Educational Association? Such men are too independent to wear a yoke of any kind. An educational millennium would be here, if the Georgia school book commission would elect a subcommission of such country school teachers and say to them: "Recommend school books to us for the country public schools of the state."

The writer purposes to appeal to the people of Georgia, the country people of Georgia, next year and the year after, to assist him to tear away from the University and the towns and the cities the administration of the affairs of the country public schools; and he especially purposes to appeal to the country people of Georgia to assist him to rid all the public schools of the state of the constant interference and domination of school book interests.

SENATE NAMES NEW COMMITTEE

Fourth Conference Between Two Houses of Legislature.

CONVICT LEASE UNSETTLED

Senate Held Two-Hour Session, and, After Appointing a Fourth Committee to Confer With Similar House Committee, Adjourned Until This Morning.

After being in session for two hours, the senate yesterday adjourned to meet again this morning at 10 o'clock. A fourth committee was appointed to confer with a committee from the house to come to some agreement if possible on the convict lease question. Senator Born introduced a new substiture to the bill pending before the senate.

When the senate was called to order at 10 o'clock the third committee, which had been in conference since Saturday afternoon, reported that it could come to an agreement, and asked, therefore, to be discharged.

At 11:50 o'clock a message was received from the house of representatives stating that Representatives Blackburn, Donaldson and Chamblee had been appointed on a fourth committee to confer with the senate. President Flynt appointed Senators Farmer, Walden and Henderson, of the thirty-ninth to act on this committee.

Adjourned Until This Morning.

Senator Wilkes moved that the senate adjourn until 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Senator Felder moved as a substitute that the senate adjourn until 3 o'clock Monday afternoon. His motion was lost by a vote of 9 to 14. The motion of Senator Wilkes to adjourn until Tuesday morning was carried.

The bill by Senator Born places the female convicts on the state prison farm, and abolishes the lease system April 1, 1909. His bill is one that favors the placing of the convicts in the hands of the counties. It will be taken up by the penitentiary committee this morning at 9 o'clock. Senator Brock, who is chairman of the committee, announced yesterday that he would resign as chairman if the committee decided to report the bill back without recommendation, as he did not think the system adopted of late of reporting back bills without taking any action was right. He states that if he remains as chairman the bill must either have a favorable or an unfavorable report, for to just simply refer it back without action will not suit him. As several members of the committee are in favor of reporting the bill back without taking action, it is thought quite an interesting meeting will be held in the committee room this morning.

CHANGES BY SEABOARD IN EFFECT NEXT SUNDAY

Several Important Changes Are Made in Schedules Which Will Save Time.

Effective Sunday, September 13, the Seaboard will make important changes in their through schedules between Birmingham, Atlanta and Richmond, Washington, New York and the east, inaugurating the quickest schedules they have ever operated between these points.

Train No. 32, now leaving Atlanta at 12:20 noon, will be changed to leave at 11:20 a. m. and will arrive in New York at 2:45 p. m., or at 1:45 p. m., Atlanta time, instead of 6:30 o'clock, eastern time, as at present.

This train southbound, which is No. 33, will leave New York later than at present and will reach Atlanta at 4 p. m. instead of 4:45 p. m. as at present.

In addition to quickening the schedules the Seaboard will improve this service by operating their dining cars through to Jersey City, which is the first time that this desirable feature has ever been undertaken.

With this service the Seaboard is the only line operating through car service from Memphis and Birmingham to the east through Atlanta.

In addition to the above changes and improvement in service in their Atlanta-New York through trains the Seaboard will also put on local train between Cedartown and Atlanta, leaving Cedartown at 7:35 a. m., arriving at Atlanta at 9:25 a. m.; leave Atlanta at 4 p. m., arrive at Cedartown at 6 p. m. This additional service will be very valuable to people along the line of the Birmingham division of the Seaboard between Cedartown and Atlanta.

ATLANTA

SOCIETY

Horse Show Notes.

Despite the pleasures of golf and tennis, the bicycle and the motor, women the world over have taken up with more favor than at any previous time horseback riding. In the parks, in the city, at the sea shore, in the mountains, at all the resorts, horseback riding is the favorite pastime, and no young woman of the moment feels that her education has well begun unless she can ride, and ride well, almost any horse she is asked to mount.

There is no doubt that the popularity of the horse show in this and the old world is largely responsible for the present universal favor women are demonstrating for the horse.

They are competitors at all the leading shows, both in the riding and driving classes, and at several of the horse shows in the east, women of prominence have acted as judges.

It will be recalled that at the Atlanta show of last week, Miss Hilda Fletcher, of Indianapolis and Gallatin, Tenn., was the prize winner in several classes her management of her horses, as well as their qualifications, eleciting the warmest admiration.

Miss Fletcher resides at her father's stock farm in Gallatin, Tenn., and is considered one of the best women riders in the country. She will be among the lady competitors of the forthcoming show.

Georgia boasts a number of good riders among her most prominent and attractive women: Miss Louise DuBose, of Athens, is one of the most graceful and fearless of riders. Miss Goss, of Athens, is likewise gifted.

Miss Trotter, of Savannah, who exhibited her riding of horses at the Augusta show last spring, has been invited to the Atlanta show.

Mis Marie Plinizy, of Augusta, is an expert rider, also Mrs. Walter Farmar, of Macon, who will be among the fair visitors to the Atlanta show this year.

Mrs. Alfred Sanford, of Knoxville, and Miss Katherine Briscoe ride admirably, also Miss Eleanor Meeks, of Nashville, all three of whom will take pare in the Atlanta show.

Miss Maud Morgan, of Richmond; Miss Stewart Jones, of Charlotte, N. C., and the Misses Royston, of Virginia, are among the out of town belles who will take part in the rough rider drill, of which feature of the Atlanta show Mrs. John Hill is chairman.

In Louisville and Nasville a similar drill participated in by society leaders was the most popular feature of the shows.

Afternoon Tea.

Miss Louise Massey and Miss Ethel Hate will entertain Tuesday, September 15 at a reception at the former's home on N. Boulevard. Two hundred guests will be entertained.

More than ten years ago this social and literary circle disbanded, and on Friday evening, August 11, all of the old members are expected to meet at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. M. M. Anderson at Battle Hill.

To Miss Aldret.

Miss Ruth Roberts and sister, Mrs. G. Y. Pierce, entertained Friday evening in honor of Miss Katie Aldret, of Charleston, S. C., who has been visiting friends in Atlanta and Decatur for the past taree weeks.

The entire first floor was thrown open to the guests, who alone can give a true account of the great hospitality of the host and hostess.

The main feature of the evening was a very enjoyable game written on hand-painted cards with a pencil attached giving misspelled names of animals of various kinds. Two prizes were given, a beautiful picture and chic little Jap doll.

Miss Mary Lehman was the fortunate winner of the picture, but Miss Gena Allen surpassed Miss Lehman by diligently striving for and winning the Jap baby.

Towards the last of the evening delicious refreshments were served under the shadows of a bowl full of the brown-eyed Susans, which formed the center piece of yellow and white, that the yellow pears and white grapes assisted admirably, the blinky daises in their silent attempts at flirtations, after which the following guests parted very reluctantly:

Miss Katie Aldret, Misse Katie and Mattie Elliss, Miss Annie Loue Callahan, Miss Judson Latiner, Miss Annie Newman, Miss Beatrix Wimberly, Miss May Belle Abbott, Miss Blanche Abbott, Miss Grace Lehman, Miss Mary Lehman, Miss Mae Patterson, Miss Gena Allen, Miss Annie Sherman, Messrs. Wallace Abbott, Jack Aldret, James Freeman, H. Dry, James Humphries, Sowell, Walter McDowell, C. W. Hubbard, Chas. Lehman, H. J. Vulmer, Tobie Williams, Theo. Pierce, Joseph Cunningham.

Miss Whitman Entertains.

Twenty guests were delightfully entertained at bridge yesterday by Miss Martha Whitman in honor of her guest, Mrs. Campbell, of Chattanooga. The prizes included a French etching and a pair of silk stockings, and an elegant luncheon was served at the end of the game. Miss Whitman wore a beautiful toilet in white mull, embroidered, and trimmed in lace.

Under the plan followed at the seminary for the grading and promotion of students, whereby promptness and regularity of attendance as well as class standing are counted, it is important that the pupils be on hand the opening date. POPE ATTACKS FRANCE.

He Says the Republic Has Declared War on God.

Rome, September 7.—The pope today received 800 French pilgrims who came here for the purpose of presenting greetings on the jubilee anniversary of the pontiff's ordination as a priest. His holiness made a lengthy speech, dealing with the present situation of the church in France, during the course of which he said:

"I hope the day will never come for France in which her churches, being destroyed, the faithful shall be obliged to take refuge in other countries. In these days, while the holy sacrament is exalted in protestant England, and while the holy wafer is honored throughout the streets of London, in France liberty is trampled upon by brutal force, serving those who declared war on God to the detriment of France."

The pope ended his discourse by recommending union to the French Catholics and clergy.

HE TOOK THE GIRL'S DARE

And Made an Unheralded Ascension in Balloon.

San Jose, Cal., September 7.—Accepting a dare from a young woman, Fred Biaggi, the 10-year-old son of M. Prune Archer, yesterday made a daring and unheralded aeronautic ascent that thrilled hundreds of spectators. Running forward just as W. L. Warring, the professional parachute artist, cut loose from the ground, Biaggi sprang into the cordage at the mouth of the bag and was carried upward to a height estimated at 6,000 feet. Warring, with his parachute, cut loose at an elevation of 2,500 feet and with Biaggi as its solitary passenger, the balloon drifted over the hills of the coast range until it was almost lost to view. His weight prevented the sudden escape of the gas and after two hours of suspense from his friends he returned to town, having landed without injury.

FOR MURDER OF SIX PERSONS

The murder, when committed, created great excitement, and rewards of $1,000 were offered for the murderer. Hatfield, or Dunham, came to this community about two months ago. He is being held awaiting advices from California.

THE THEATERS

At the Grand.

Florence Davis, who last season as Nora in "The Doll House" made such a favorable impression on the occasion of her visit to Atlanta, played a matinee and night performance yesterday at the Grand in Maxine Elliott's dramatic vehicle, "Under the Greenwood Tree," a play which gave her fewer opportunities for the display of her talents.

The theme is the beauty of nature and the heroine, Miss Hamilton, is supposed to be a young girl, an orphan, immensely rich, who suddenly awakens to the realization that wealth does not give one all the pleasures of life and that there are other attractions which the poor share equally with the rich. To live the free wild life, to taste of the joys of the primitive and to know life at its best, Mary Hamilton buys a gypsy van, persuades her secretary to travel with her and lives the life of a gypsy for a fortnight. She has some trouble with the gypsies from whom she bought the can and meets J. G. M. Hylton, a young justice of the peace, on whose land she is camping without a permit. He falls desperately in love with her and in the space of one day woos and wins her.

The first act, during which she unfolds her plan of sylvan life to her friends and gently refuses Sir Kenneth Graham's offer of marriage, is verly cleverly done. The work of Edwin Van Sloan as Sir Kenneth is especially worthy of mention.

The remaining three acts are not entirely satisfactory. Somehow the observer too often feels that it is only a play he is seeing and finds it hard to imagine it a eal snatch from the book of life. Stage art is the ability to make people believe you are in earnest. Every now and then you do believe Miss Davis is in earnest, every now and then you catch the breath of the woods, smell the flowers so profusely scattered around the stage. But then come lapses in the dream—moments when you wake up and know it is only make believe; moments when you see through the artificiality of it all. The realness is not always there.

Miss Davis is at times, too, forced in her merriment, but at other times she is very fetching, very skillful in her work. She is better when telling her friend of her sudden translation into the world of love than in listening to his proposal.

Miss Theodora Dudley, who played the part of Peggy Ingledew, Miss Hamilton's secretary, shows up well in the final act. Her snoring is most life-like.

ROBERT MORAN.

"McFadden's Flats."

In presenting "McFadden's Flats" this season Messrs. Girton and Wiswell, the well-known theatrical managers, offer an entirely new show. This frolicsome hodge podge of the stage, which has weathered many seasons successfully, will be the attraction at the Grand Wednesday matinee and night. It has been described as newer and better than ever before.

"The Land of Nod."

"The Land of Nod" production will be seen for the first time in this city at the Grand Thursday matinee and night. It is an amusement event that has been looked forward to for a long time with anticipations of keenest pleasure, which is due to the remarkable vogue which has been enjoyed by the big production in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other large cities.

At the Bijou.

Those Greater New York Stars at the Bijou this week are twinklers of the brightest ilk, and if you don't watch yourself those girls with their coquettish glances, nimble toes, shapely limbs and abbreviated costumes will bewitch you into buying a season pass.

This musical comedy is rich, racy and rare and is two and a half hours of fun and amusement. The costumes are sparkling new and some of them are beauties, too. The best features of the show are the Tyson Sisters, as "Those Deutcher Girls;" a trick donkey, probably the one given to William Jennings Bryan in disguise, and the memory sketching upon a chart by one O'Donelly. The likenesses of the two presidential candidates were drawn in short order by this charcoal artist. The "trick mule" has horse sense and acts human in its antics.

The customary packed house was on hand and an evening of pleasure lies in store for any person who visits the Bijou this week.

At the Orpheum.

Ushered into one of the handsomest lobbies ever seen south of the Mason and Dixon line, the public of Atlanta last night was tendered by the management of the Orpheum theater the best class of vaudeville acts ever seen in this city.

It would take too many words to go into details regarding the elaborateness of the decorations, both as to the effects and to the scenery, of the new theater. Some master hand has rejuvenated the place. The credit for these changes is due to J. Reginald MacEachron, the well-known architect and song writer. The decorating was done by the United Painting and Decorating Company, of Atlanta.

The entire bill was one that met with the approval of everyone. There could be only one criticism, and that in the case of Fred Duprex, the parodist, whose jokes are just a slight bit too rough for the south. His acting, however, was very good.

Buch Brothers, in a comedy acrobatic act, were away above some of those seen here last season. The three Weston sisters gave the audience some real music, and were greatly appreciated. Volta of course, captured everyone's attention. The fact that he could play with electricity just as easy as some people run away from it was what held the attention.

Walter Terry and Nellie Elmer had a very fine sketch, and one that evoked a laugh every minute. That is saying a great deal for a sketch in the vaudeville business. Leont Pam, the little miss who sings comic songs, was one of the hits of the evening. The last act, similar to Gus Edwards' schoolboys, was the Nananees. It was a star feature well performed, and one that everyone liked. The flickerless pictures added another innovation.

Manager Kahn, during the intermission, was accorded an ovation by the audience when he appeared to make an announcement.

WEDDINGS FOLLOW BATHING.

Romances That Begun in the Surf Culminate at the Altar.

New York, September 7.—The bathing season being about over, weddings said to be the outcome of romances of the surf are beginning to come along.

Miss Besale Meyer, 19 years old, of Brooklyn, was saved from drowning at Brighton Beach on July 4 by Abraham R. Koehn, a clothing manufacturer. Last night they were married.

Benjamin Magio was bathing at Rockaway Beach on July 5. He got beyond his depth and was seized with cramps. Miss Josephine Halversen, of Brooklyn, swam out, collared him and swam ashore. She had never seen Magio before. Several days later Magio looked across the street and saw her. He sought an introduction and got it. They will be married tonight.

New and Magnificent Millinery Dep't

We feel that we are safe when we make the assertion that nowhere in the South can be found a Millinery Department as beautiful in appearance and as complete in equipment as is this one. We have endeavored to give to Atlanta this distinction and we trust your approval will demonstrate to us that we have admirably succeeded in our efforts.

PISTOL BATTLE WAGED AT SELMA

Norris and Son-in-Law Have Duel---Fatal to Both.

Selma, Ala., September 7.—A terrible tragedy took place on the streets of Selma at noon today. John Norris, while on Washington street going to dinner was attacked by his son-in-law, Kirk Pilen. It seems that the men first engaged in a fight in which fence palings were used, then pistols were brought into play. Both men received possibly fatal wounds. Mr. Norris was shot in the leg, the ball breaking his thigh and in the side, while the son-in-law was shot in the right arm and body. The physicians think there is no chance for the recovery of Pilen and but little hope for Norris. The trouble grew out of a family difficulty.

FIGHT FOR PARTY EMBLEM.

Davidson Faction Seek to Prevent Use by Thompson Faction.

Montgomery, Ala., September 7.—The question of which wing of the republican party has a right to the party emblem in the state was argued today before A. D. Sayre, judge of the city court, on application for injunction to prevent use by the Thompson wing, that faction which has been recognized by the national republican committee.

Julius Davidson, president of the insurgent forces, has undertaken to have the emblem, first filed by his side, denied to the Thompson wing and to have the courts say that his is the only republican organization that can hold election under state control. The matter will be held up for several days. The state requires that each party shall have an emblem and that its candidates shall be printed on the ticket under that emblem. The first emblem was filed by the Davidson crowd, who now claim exclusive right to it.

JUDGE W. W. FLOYD DEAD.

Former Resident of Atlanta Passes Away at Fairburn.

Fairburn, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—William W. Floyd, age 70 years, one of Campbell county's most prominent citizens, died at his residence in Fairburn Sunday afternoon after an illness extending over many months.

Mr. Floyd was born in Morgan county near Madison; was a confederate soldier, after the war entered the mercantile business in Atlanta and later removed to Palmetto, where he married Miss Emma Swann, daughter of Bluford Swann of Campbell county, and niece of the late James Swann, of New York. He is survived by his wife, three sons, Messrs. James Floyd, Charles Floyd and Henry Floyd, all of whom are prominently connected with the Atlanta National Bank; also by three daughters, Misses Mamie, Nelle and Winnie Floyd, of Fairburn.

The funeral services were conducted by Rev. C. J. Bialock, of the Fairburn Baptist church, and the burial was in the family cemetery at Palmetto this afternoon.

MINIMUM PRICE TWELVE CENTS

Alleged That Figure Was Fixed by the Farmers' Union.

Fort Worth, Texas, September 7.—It is generally understood here today that the "secret minimum" set by the National Farmers' union for cotton is twelve cents per pound. This is the price agreed upon by the farmers and which was to have been maintained throughout the season as a strictly confidential matter by the union members.

At union headquarters the officials refused to deny or affirm the rumor which is believed to be correct.

WIRZ MONUMENT LOCATION.

Andersonville Is Opposed by Many U. D. C. Chapters.

Americus, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—That there is a radical change in sentiment relative to erecting the Wirz shaft at some other place than Andersonville is evidenced in the action of United Daughters of the Confederacy chapters throughout Georgia.

Quite recently Mrs. J. E. Mathis, of Americus, the chairman of the committee on monument location, sent letters to all of the ninety-four United Daughters of the Confederacy chapters, setting forth in full the reasons why the Wirz monument should not be erected almost at the gates of the Andersonville national cemetery, where its presence would tend to engender bitterness and resentment upon the part of the northern women and visitors generally who go there. Many of the chapters have already taken formal action and advised Mrs. Mathis of their desire that the monument not be erected at Andersonville.

The matter will be finally disposed of at the state meeting of the Daughters of the Confederacy, to be held at Savannah, October 31. In the meantime the handsome shaft to be erected to the confederate martyr, Major Wirz, commandant of the Andersonville prison during the civil war, is rapidly nearing completion in an Americus marble yard.

COTTON MATURING EARLY.

Already Americus' Cotton Receipts Amount to 6,000 Bales.

Americus, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—One thousand bales wagon cotton were added Saturday to receipts at the Americus warehouses, and already the total of the season's receipts to date is near 6,000 bales. This is against 2,500 bales at this date last year and evidences the early maturing of the crop as the result of adverse weather conditions. Many of the fields here are well picked over already, and one more picking will suffice, as there are no new bolls to open. Farmers are disposed to take current prices for their cotton and of the near 6,000 bales marketed here already probably 5,000 have been sold.

RUSTIN DRIVEN TO DEATH BY THE LOSS OF FORTUNE

Girl Friend of the Omaha Doctor Makes a Statement That Clears Mystery.

Omaha, Neb., September 7.—Mrs. Abbie L. Rice, who has been detained at the city jail for three days in connection with the mysterious shooting of Dr. Frederick Rustin last Wednesday morning, has given to Chief of Police Donahue, and County Attorney English a long statement, in which it is said she clears up considerable of the mystery surrounding the shooting and makes it a probable case of suicide, although the chief of police declared it had been made plain that neither Mrs. Rice nor Mrs. Rustin could possibly have had any definite knowledge of how the doctor was shot.

The girl said she had known Rustin since last December and that four weeks ago he told her of his troubles. She said he told her he had lost everything, that he was in debt to an extent which would make it impossible for him ever to get out. He had received notice to vacate his office for non-payment of rent, had borrowed from his friends and had several checks at the bank with no funds to cover them. This had driven him to a deliberate plan to end his life.

The girl says she left him in a condition of mental agony Tuesday and could not sleep for fear something terrible would happen. She telephoned the Rustin home three times and when she learned he had not reached there she was sure that he had carried out his intention of taking his life. The statement also intimates that the insurance he carried, amounting to about $50,000, had much to do with his action, he wishing to protect his family. Many of the policies had lapsed for non-payment of premiums and others were coming due every week or so.

MORE TROOPS GO HOME.

Within a Week There Will Be No Troops in Mining District.

Birmingham, Ala., September 7—Demonstrating that peace prevails throughout the mining fields of Alabama more military left here today for their respective homes.

No reports were received today indicating that there was any prospect whatever of more disorder and the removal of troops is a safe proposition. Within a week there will be no troops left at all in the district, even all trace of the camp in the city is to be removed.

Despite the fact that this is Labor day, a large number of men returned to work in the mining district today. The effort for a general resumption of operations in the Alabama coal mines is now on and it is estimated that during this week no less than ten thousand men will have returned to work after an idleness of two months and longer.

There is need for all the coal that can be mined. Commercial coal mines which have not even attempted to start operations since the first of July will be in operation before another forty-eight hours. With the starting up of coal mines, preparations are being made to improve the iron production. The Republic Company is now producing iron at the No. 3 furnace at Thomas, though No. 1 iron makers at the same place will shortly have to be blown out for repairs.

GAVE HIS LIFE TO SAVE CHILD

Brave New York Man Rescued Child From Burning Apartment.

New York, September 7.—Though badly burned, John Tuck, a retired real estate dealer, returned to a burning apartment in Brooklyn this afternoon for a missing child and save it, but at the expense of his own life.

He had already rescued the mother, Mrs. William Clampet, using his coat to protect her as he carried her down the stairs. She cried for her child when the street was reached.

Disregarding his own injuries, Tucker hurried back and safely brought the infant out of the house. On his second trip he was unable to prevent his own clothing from taking fire. When he laid the child in its mother's arms he collapsed and died. Neither Mrs. Clampet nor her child received serious injuries.

HEAD WAS ALMOST SEVERED.

Young Georgian Met a Horrible Death at Carrabelle, Fla.

Carrabelle, Fla., September 7.—J. A. Jones, a young man whose home was in Georgia, was killed on the dredge boat Fidget here today in a horrible manner. He stepped under the great crane, which came down upon him, almost severing his head from his body. The machinery was started suddenly and struck the young man before he knew it was in motion.

P. O. CLERKS MEET AT BIRMINGHAM

Several Hundred Delegates Present at Meeting of National Association.

Birmingham, Ala., September 7.—The ninth annual convention of the National Association of Postofffice Clerks began here this morning, several hundred representatives from all parts of the United States being present. The convention is being held in the city hall.

The gathering was called to order by E. P. Green, president of the Birmingham branch, who introduced Rev. Dr. Duncan, of the First Methodist church, who led in prayer. Addresses of welcome were delivered on behalf of the city, the state and the local organization, Postmaster J. Rivers Carter extending the latter. The response was made to the welcome addresses by Hon. Frank T. Rogers, of Chicago, the president of the national organization.

The program of the sessions shows that there is much business to be transacted. A number of grievances of the postoffice clerks are to be aired at this gathering. Sunday work and other matters are to be discussed. The local organization has a number of trips to mines, furnaces, steel plants, a barbecue and other social entertainments arranged for the visitors.

Reports of officers submitted to the convention show that the organization now has upwards of twenty thousand members. Among other recommendations the president suggested that the national convention give formal expression of indorsement to the parcels post. A mortuary feature was also recommended by the president and also the stamp of approval was placed upon postal savings banks.

During the speech making today the name of Frank Hitchcock came up and there was tremendous applause. The organization has over eight thousand dollars in its treasury.

Selma Man Dropped Dead.

Selma, Ala., September 7.—At 5 o'clock this morning W. E. Allen, who has been a resident of Selma for the past forty years, dropped dead at his home on Franklin street. Mr. Allen has been in the butcher business for thirty years and was a member of the city council. He leaves a wife and six children. Heart failure was the cause of death. At the time of death he was a prominent candidate for chief of police.

SHOT HIS BROTHER-IN-LAW.

Cleve Carson Shot John Padgett in the Head.

Brooks, Ga., September 7.—(Special.)—In a difficulty here in front of Boykin Bros'. store Cleve Carson shot John Padgett, his brother-in-law, with a 38 caliber revolver. The ball penetrated the extreme back of the head and came very near being fatal. It seems that they had had some previous misunderstanding and renewed the difficulty when they met here. It is not thought Padgett's wound will prove fatal. They are both prominent young men.

GOPHER TAKES A DAY OFF

Fine Shows in Town Make Any Old Weather Welcome.

Paradoxically enough, on Labor day everybody employed by Uncle Sam stops work to watch the parade.

For this reason the weather factory on top of the Empire building shut up shop and "Boss" Von Hermann gave all hands a day.

There was no weather forecast and the public is at liberty to make any sort of guess for the weather today it sees fit. The correct weather will be recorded in this column Wednesday.

Inasmuch as Labor day was just about all that could be asked in the way of weather, nothing short of a freeze and a snowstorm combined could make organized labor other than happy.

Labor day was "all play and no work," which makes Jack a happy boy.

The theatrical season is opening up splendidly and just like little old New York, Atlanta is looking forward for its "first nights." With the Grand open, the Bijou packed and the Orpheum opening last night, and the Lyric and Lyceum yet to open, the Gopher has contracted the play-going habit.

"I wish I was twins," said he. "I went to the Bijou yesterday afternoon and almost choked. Last night I wanted to see 'Under the Greenwood Tree' at the Grand and the Orpheum and couldn't decide which one to go to and almost missed both in an effort to make the choice. When the Lyric and Lyceum are added, too, and I have five chances I know I shall die.

"If it is 'fair' today I shall take in the matinee and then begin all over again."

"COUPONS, PLEASE."

in the union. With the exception of Roanoke, Lineville and Talladega, it does not touch a town that was known before this line was projected, but everywhere towns are springing up, and the natural resources of the country have already reached a development which has amazed everybody and the work is just beginning.

The special was run by the Commercial Club and board of trade of Birmingham and from each town along the line there were delegations who came to Birmingham as the guests of these two bodies.

A committee of Birmingham citizens met the special train at Arkwright, a station named for vice president of the road, with brass band.

Before Birmingham was reached, there were close to nine hundred guests on the train.

Without mishap or delay, the train followed its course. Every arrangement had been so made that nothing went awry.

All along the road, there were gathered groups of farmers and their families to cheer the long train and at every town a great crowd was out to give it welcome.

While the line from LaGrange to Birmingham does not pass through as many large towns as the line from Brunswick to Atlanta, the officials of the road declare that the welcome in Alabama was just as hearty as was that given at the opening of the line into the Gate City and they feel greatly gratified at the splendid treatment they have received at the hands of the people of the two states.

Third New Road for Birmingham.

The Illinois Central and the Mobile and Ohio railroads have both entered Birmingham this year, but the reception given the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, though the third new road to enter in a short time, is said to have eclipsed the demonstrations marking the opening of those lines.

The city's guests are being well taken care of by local committees. Tomorrow they will be given a barbecue, trolley ride over the industrial district and numbers of other entertainments are being arranged.

A., B. & A. IS A DEVELOPER, SAYS PRESIDENT ATKINSON

Birmingham, Ala., September 7.—In his address at the banquet, President Atkinson said in part:

I wish first to express for myself and the other officials of the A., B. & A. railroad our gratification for this reception tonight. It is impossible to express it strongly enough. The construction of the road began three years ago last May and has been pushed continuously up to the present time. Of course those of us who have been engaged in it—and I can assure you that we have had three and one-half years of constant trials and struggles—are pleased at this gathering here tonight and what it means.

The completion of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad gives Birmingham a new independent railroad system to tidewater, comprising in round numbers about 650 miles, with steamship connections from Brunswick to New York and Galveston. The road has been built according to the highest standards, and is capable of handling heavy traffic. Eighty-pound rails have been used throughout. The grades are low and the curvature easy. Our terminals in New York, Brunswick, Birmingham and Atlanta are comprehensive, and the equal of any in those places.

The basic plan of the road is a long water haul from the east to Brunswick, Ga., and distribution by rail throughout southeastern territory and through the Birmingham gateway to the west. The road gives Birmingham a new direct connection with New York, New England and all points in the east, and vice versa. The road, judged from all standpoints, is undoubtedly the best connection Birmingham has today with eastern territory. Of course you all appreciate the significance of this and its importance in the future development of your city.

All the officers of the road live on it and are constantly in touch with its patrons and all its territory. We intend to be in constant touch with our patrons and to get and keep their business by taking constant interest in the development of their affairs.

Alabama Towns Touched.

Starting at the Alabama line just west of the Chattahoochee river, the road runs through a territory in Alabama that was not previously well served by the railroads, and a large and productive territory, heretofore inaccessible to Birmingham, is brought close to you, so that you will get a large share of the trade which has heretofore gone to other places. I refer to Chambers, Randolph, Clay, Talladega and Shelby counties. Starting near the Alabama line, the first town of any importance is Standing Rock. This is a new town. The Chattahoochee Valley railroad has built a line from West Point to a connection with the A., B. & A. railroad at Standing Rock. Standing Rock is already an important junction point, and will steadily grow in future.

Next comes Roanoke, an old town. The citizens of Roanoke recognize the importance of the A., B. & A. road and treated it generously. The town has taken on new life since the coming of the A., B. & A. railroad. Next comes Wadley, an entirely new town. When our right-of-way was secured through what is now the town of Wadley there were nothing but fields. Wadley is already a large cotton shipping point with a bank, brick buildings and numerous stores. We pass on to Malone and from thence to Cragford, both new towns. Then we come to Lineville, an old town which has taken on new life. Ashland comes next and is rapidly developing. Pyriton is an entirely new town and is in the center of one of the very few extensive deposits of copper pyrites in this country. This industry, which was unknown and undeveloped a few years ago, is destined to be of large proportions in future.

From Pyriton west we pass various new settlements and towns and come to Carara, which is in the center of the marble deposits of that territory. Interests friendly to the A., B. & A. railroad have developed a quarry at this point and have put in extensive machinery for the quarrying and preparation of marble. The value of this marble deposit is no longer questioned. The marble is of the finest quality that has probably been discovered in the United States, and an immense industry is certain at this point and vicinity in the future. Next we come to Talladega, one of the oldest and best known towns in Alabama, a typical old southern town; the seat of various public institutions. Talladega had three railroads before the A., B. & A. reached it, but in reality was on none. It was impossible to get to Talladega either from Birmingham or Atlanta without going by indirect and unsatisfactory routes.

Serving New Territory.

The A., B. & A. railroad gives Talladega short and quick connections to Birmingham and also to tidewater and to Atlanta. Talladega has developed remarkably since the advent of the A., B. & A. railroad. From Talladega we go on west to Arkwright, a new town, from thence to Harpersville, and then to Pelham and on to Bessemer. The road means everything to these points and the people appreciate it. The evidences of the benefit of the road are seen on all sides. The object of these remarks is merely to call attention to the fact that the A., B. & A. railroad is serving a new territory that was not well served before, to show that in doing that it is performing a real service in creating new values. There would not be any reason for it if this were not the case. It means the creation of new wealth, new industries and new towns, and these will greatly benefit your state, and especially the city of Birmingham. The trade of the territory which I have described is brought within the reach of the city of Birmingham by the A., B. & A. railroad. This was not the case before. I wish particularly to stress this point and to call the attention of you gentlemen and all the merchants of Birmingham to the large territory which we have placed directly at your doors, and which was almost inaccessible to you before. I think this territory is well worth your active efforts.

Railroads Are People's Business.

We are all aware of the present conditions of the railroads of the country. Without going into the past, I will merely call your attention to one or two facts. Railroads are absolutely a necessary and a vital part of our commercial life. It is not putting it too strongly to say that they are as important as the blood circulating through the human body. Life cannot exist in the commerce of the country without them. A rough estimate indicates that the railroads or the country, either directly or indirectly, purchase 60 per cent of everything produced. Analyze this and see what it means. The minute that the credit of the railroads is affected so that they cannot keep up and improve their properties, 60 per cent of the business of the country is largely destroyed. When the railroads can not buy, men are thrown out of employment, saw mills stop, mines close, car works close, steel companies close, and so on. This has been abundantly illustrated since last November. My purpose in stating this is to show you that the railroads are your business even though you may not be directly interested in them. When any one makes an attack on the railroads he is attacking his own business. We are all part of one vast commercial fabric. When we hit a blow at the railroads we are hitting ourselves. This is coming to be more clearly understood every day as the result of what we have been passing through for the past few years. I want to see a closer friendship between the railroads and their patrons, and all the people are the patrons of the railroads. The railroads are a part of you and you are a part of them, and our disputes cannot be fairly settled except in a spirit of mutual cooperation. Railroad rates must be high enough to earn sufficient money to keep up the properties and maintain their credit so that they can get fresh capital for extensions and improvements. If railroad rates in this country are today below that figure, they must be increased. Such an increase would be in the interest of each one of you and is an economical necessity. I earnestly hope that a new era is starting, an era based upon the mutual partnership of the railroads and the people. Under such conditions an intelligent public opinion will as surely protect the railroads from unjust attacks as it will the patrons of the railroads. I believe such a time is coming.

IT'S A SOUTHERN ENTERPRISE, SAYS PRESTON ARKWRIGHT

Birmingham, Ala., September 7.—In his address at the banquet Vice President Preston S. Arkwright said in part:

Mr. Toastmaster and Gentlemen of Alabama: We come from Georgia. We had to come from Georgia to bring the Atlantic ocean to Birmingham. Alabama herself came from Georgia years ago. So we come with a good recommendation, with the same traditions, with the same sentiment, with the same interests that Alabama has. We knew we were coming to the house of our friends. Our cordial welcome reminds us that in fact we have come to the home of our kin. We came uninvited. We expect to remain always and in order that we may not stay out our welcome we have come with the desire and with the means to be of service.

We do not claim that we selected Birmingham as the place to come from any wholly unselfish motive. We would not have started at all if there had not been a Birmingham to come to, with its great tonnage, with its unlimited coal and iron supply, with its marvelous development with its wonderful growth in the past and its limitless possibilities of the future. We wanted to make this railroad a success. That answers why it comes to Birmingham.

We bring a new railroad from the ocean—a brand-new system of railroad transportation. It is not a combination or consolidation of previously existing means of transportation, but a newly created additional highway extending from the place where God appointed iron to be made cheapest to the waters that He provided for its most economical distribution.

The line is 448 miles from Birmingham to the sea and with the line to Atlanta and branches from Sessoms, Ga., to Waycross, Ga., from Fitzgerald, Ga., to Thomasville, Ga., and from Pyriton, Ala., to Ashland, Ala., make the mileage now in operation 640 miles, and when the work now under way from Pelham around through Bessemer to Birmingham and to the coal miles of the district has been completed it will make the total system consist of some 680 miles of main line.

Terminal Facilities.

Terminal facilities have been provided at Brunswick, Birmingham and Atlanta at a cost, when the work in Birmingham has been completed, of a little under $10,000,000. At Brunswick this includes wharves and docks unexcelled not only along the south Atlantic coast, but along any other coast anywhere. At Atlanta and Birmingham land in built-up communities has had to be secured at a cost that such conditions requires and it has been obtained in both these places in area sufficient to afford an entrance into the city, with ample space for local stations and freight yards and for general yards and for connections with all other lines of transportations in each of these cities. Terminals have been acquired on a proportionate schedule in every other community through which the road runs.

Starting from nothing to build a railroad means not only providing the main line and terminals, but also locomotives, passenger cars, freight cars, rolling stock, shops and facilities of various kinds, furnishing innumerable and undreamed of avenues for the flowing out of money.

In every work somebody has got to lead. In all works of construction, in railroad construction particularly, somebody, with qualities rarely found in combination, has got to take hold if there is to be any chance for the enterprise to be put through. He has got to be a man with imagination sufficient to have foresight; he has got to be able to see the plan completed before even a paper plan is made; he has got to picture the possibilities as distinctly as if they were actualities; he must be of a strong conviction, possess great self-confidence; he must be established firmly in the confidence of others; he must have behind him a record of successes; he must have achieved the position of deserving the unlimited faith and trust of people who have means; he must be able to lead; he must have the power to persuade others to join and follow; he must have courage, determination and grit, not easily discouraged, never give up, stick to it, hang on, keep fighting; he must have the fighting bulldog neck; he must contribute of his own means more largely in proportion than anyone else who joins; he must set out to overcome obstacles; he can't avoid them; he will have difficulties, physical, accidental and financial; his expenditures will exceed his estimates; his delays will be greater than he thought; his earnings may be less than he believed; he will find a scarcity of labor; his materials will cost more than he bargained; he may meet times of depression, of panic, of gloom in the financial world; he may also have opposition to fight. There will come periods of doubt, doubt of others in him, doubt of him in himself; serious questions in his own mind as to whether he is right or not. He has got to reweigh all the considerations in the light of the new conditions; has got to satisfy himself that he is right, that his scheme is correct, that it must in the long run work out, and having done so, he must reestablish the faith and confidence of his associates.

If he fails, he loses all he has, or hopes to have, or to be—his own fortune, the money of others, confidence in himself, which he has spent; a lifetime to acquire, the prestige that he values. He must be prepared to make a sacrifice of all these, and himself, too, and he must go into it and keep on with it deliberately, knowing that if he fails, the load will fall on top of him.

I have heard it said that men who undertake to carry on these works, particularly these railroad works, are not philanthropists. Nobody pretends to claim that they do not expect to make wealth for themselves out of it. I say they must have some other additional and greater motive than mere making money. Men who have achieved the position where it is possible for them to undertake work of this character usually have as much of this world's goods as their lives need and luxuries may require. They have an ambition to create something and to be of value. They may not be philanthropists in the sense of doing charity to us, having us dependent on their bounty and making beggars, but out of their means and with their power and solely at their risk, while they are making for themselves, with the chance of losing all, they are making for us opportunities that we cannot fail to reap gain from and they are furnishing new and additional and better means whereby we can help ourselves.

Something Due Railroad Builders.

When the construction work is completed, if it ever is completed, perhaps the hardest part of the work still remains. Having completed a railroad where none was before, business must be built where no business was before. The enterprise has got to be made to earn its way; it must go through a period of waiting. As a necessary result of the building up of this business the enterprise is forced to build up the territory that it serves, so that we gain from the work of these railroads builders in the construction of their work. We also gain from the work that they must perpetually carry out for the building up of the business for the road they have constructed.

I thinik that we, especially we people of the south, owe something to the railroad builder, whoever he may be. We owe him fair treatment; we owe him just consideration; we owe him and his associates the right to his and their reward. None of us can get along with merely those things we have a right to demand of the other. We are constantly compelled to get things we cannot demand. We owe ourselves something in the treatment of the railroad builder; we owe ourselves at least the pleasure of dealing with him liberally, generously.

This particular railroad is a southern enterprise. It is incorporated under the laws of the adjoining state of Georgia. It has demonstrated itself also as an Alabama corporation, under the laws of Alabama. Its principal office is located in the south. Its officers are either native born Georgians or Alabamians or have lived so long in one or the other states that they have become imbued with the same spirit, have the same sentiments, share the same feelings and possess a common interest with the people of Alabama and Georgia. The railroad carries the name of Birmingham in its own name. The coal and iron company has adopted Birmingham as its name. The enterprises are capable of being of service to Alabama and Georgia and surely the disposition of the people who control the enterprise is to do everything in their power for the mutual advantage of the enterprise and those it serves.

The road has come a long way and has been coming a long time. It is necessarily not as strong as if it had reached its maturity, or had had a chance to recuperate from the effort and wear of its journey. It means to give the very best service in its power. It is ambitious that such service shall constantly improve. It is one of Birmingham's roads; it is one of Alabama's enterprises. Remember it comes to Birmingham in order that it might be a success. Birmingham has never fallen down yet.

RICH TERRITORY OPENED BY COMPLETION OF ROAD

The opening of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic railroad into Birmingham brings into more intimate commercial relations with the Magic City and with Atlanta a territory never before served by any system of railroads. This territory is rich in wonderful natural resources, as yet undeveloped, while the possibilities for building up commercial and industrial enterprises are practically unlimited.

Previous to the construction of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic there were already a number of important towns far inland and served by wagon trips of many miles to and from the nearest points located on a railroad. Even under such difficulties the merchants made money, the fertility of the soil in that locality being capable of such abundant production that farmers were amply justified in remaining inland and paying a slight advance on their supplies, demanded on account of difficulties encountered in delivery.

The new road traversed the Alabama counties of Clay, Talladega, Chambers, Randolph and Jefferson. It is seldom that in any county is found a greater diversity of possibilities than in this short stretch of 139 miles between Roanoke and Birmingham. The first town across the Georgia border is Standing Rock, created by the opening up of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, a town that never existed previous to the coming of the railroad. It is located in close proximity to the fertile Chattahoochee river lands, and the surrounding territory is rich in the production of cotton, corn, oats and in some instances, wheat, while the farmers appreciate the advantages of raising cattle and hogs. They are an enterprising, thrifty lot of people, and prosperity is abroad in every corner of the territory.

Roanoke an Important Point.

Roanoke is the most important of the towns in the east Alabama section. It has oil mills, modern warehouses for the storing of great crops of cotton and other farm products; it has several important banks bulging with money produced by the productive soil. It takes rank as an important center, as it now has railroad facilities sufficient to supply the needs of all of its citizens and surrounding territory.

There is a gap 89 miles in length between Roanoke and Talladega, a rugged, beautiful country, that has never before had a railroad nearer than 50 miles. The Birmingham division of the Southern was on the one side, and the Columbus to Birmingham division of the Central was on the other. Between was a stretch of 50 miles of productive territory. The Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic splits this gap in half and supplies an almost air line on low grades and easy curves.

Between Roanoke and Talladega a number of important towns have been created, viz., Wadley, Cragford, Lineville, Pyriton, Malone, Carara Junction, Ashland, Clearmont and others. These towns have marble, pyrites, iron and zinc ore, farming and other industries to draw from.

The pyrites mines in this territory are among the richest in the world, not excepting the mines of Spain and Sicily. Already progress has been made in the production of pyrites and a short railroad was constructed to facilitate the handling of the mineral. But the facilities were entirely inadequate, until the opening of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic. Now the production of pyrites has taken on renewed activity and the industry bids fair to take an important place in the commerce of the south. The owners of the mines have already installed machinery for the production and refining of the mineral, for which there is always a ready market on account of its scarcity.

Mineral Springs at Clearmont.

At beautiful Clearmont there are mineral springs, pronounced by experts to possess great healing properties. The location of the property is ideal, nestling at the base of a great mountain, the summit of which presents an ideal location for a resort hotel, while the surrounding territory is a scenic panorama unsurpassed by any in the country. It is understood that plans are already under way and rapidly approaching maturity, for just such a resort.

The marble industry is one of the most important, however. Experts brought from Italy by the owners of the property have pronounced the marble Carara. It possessed a firm texture, is of beautiful shadings of blue to dead white, while there is a noticeable absence of chrystal which speaks volumes for the durability of the marble and its desirability for monumental or statuary purposes. A company has been formed which has installed machinery and is developing the quarry along conservative lines. Displays have been made at various expositions and art exhibits. In almost every case first, second or third prizes have been awarded among a host of competitors.

Colonial Talladega.

Talladega is a city typical of the colonial south. It is not only rich in historic interest and famed for truly southern hospitality, but industry and commerce are woven into the fabric of its career. The city has long wished for just such facilities as the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic afford, and while the citizens doubted the ability of President Atkinson and his associates to succeed where so many had failed, they were willing to give this effort a chance. All put their shoulders to the wheel and cooperated in every way possible, and now that their wishes are realized they are a unit in well wishing success for the new enterprise. Talladega can be reached on a direct route from Birmingham and Atlanta, while it is brought in close touch with the Atlantic ocean.

The Birmingham territory was the real objective point of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, although it must depend largely for success on the territory through which it passes. And this dependence will be reciprocated by unexcelled service, so that both will cooperate to the mutual advantage of the other. But the wonderful resources of the Birmingham district will feel more perfectly the tread of the march of progress. The Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic creates a new and direct outlet to the sea. It has facilities sufficient to accommodate and transport promptly an enormous tonnage. The coal miners and iron manufacturers have ever cooperated heartily with the builders of the road, because they realize the advantage of its presence and the road officials have been just as heartily reciprocated, because they appreciate the value to the road of the products of the mines.

KNOX IN AUTO ACCIDENT.

Senator and Son Narrowly Escape Death in Switzerland.

Geneva, Switzerland, September 7.—Senator Philander C. Knox, of Pennsylvania, had a narrow escape today from serious injury while returning from Evian-les-Baines to Geneva by automobile. Senator Knox was accompanied by his son and the latetr also escaped with a few bruises and torn clothes.

The mishap occurred while the automobile was proceeding along a narrow road at a good rate of speed. Passing over a soft spot, the machine skidded and ran over the bank into a deep ditch. Senator Knox was practically unhurt and his son, who managed to jump from the car, was only slightly bruised about the arms and shoulders.

The automobile was badly damaged.

Senator Knox, who has been forced to temporarily abandon his automobile tour, left here this afternoon for Basle.

WARNING SENT TO TAFT.

Plot to Assassinate Is Alleged by Anonymous Letter.

Topeka, Kas., September 7.—The State Journal today prints an unsigned letter, mailed in Topeka in the latter part of August, and addressed to Judge William H. Taft, in which the writer warns the republican presidential nominee of an alleged plot to assassinate him. The letter, which was remailed to the chief of police of Topeka by direction of Judge Taft, was made public here today by the latter official.

The writer is believed to be of unsound mind. The letter follows:

"Topeka, Kas., August 27.—Secretary of War W. H. Taft—Dear Sir: I feel it is my duty to enlighten you on some facts which greatly concern you. Four or five suspicious-looking men were seen in close conversation in a box car which was standing in the Rock Island yards. I was very close to the car, and, having rubber heels, they did not hear my approach. They were busy formulating plans to assassinate the next president, who they said would be you, and, moreover, they were going to try their best to implicate some negro men. One of the men was very desperate, and swore he would do it at Chicago the next time you came; but that he would do so with a rifle from the top of some skyscraper. Yours respectfully,

"YOUR UNKNOWN FRIEND."

Miss Annie Peck's Great Climb.

Lima, Peru, September 7.—Miss Annie S. Peck, of Providence, R. I., the mountain climber, has succeeded in her second attempt in reaching the summit of Mount Huascaran. She calculates that the height of the summit is 26,000 feet. A Swiss companion of Miss Peck had a foot and both hands frozen, which caused gangrene to set in, and an Indian guide was miraculously saved from death after falling a thousand feet down a ravine.

TWO KILLINGS OCCURRED IN BARNWELL COUNTY, S. C.

Gruber Was Killed by Dewitt in the Latter's Front Yard—White Man Kills Negro.

Columbia, S. C., September 7.—(Special.)—Barnwell county has had two more murders added to her list. On Saturday afternoon L. F. Miles had a fuss with a negro named Caleb Nix. A short time afterward Miles met Nix and after a few words shot him four times, each shot taking effect. The negro died almost instantly. Miles gave himself up to the authorities. Nix had a large knife open in his pocket when searched after his death.
This afternoon L. W. Dewitt, of Blackville, cut to death a Mr. Gruber in his front yard. There seems to have been some personal matter between the two men. Mr. Gruber came by Mr. Dewitt's yard, and after a few words started in the gate. Mr. Dewitt advanced in his shirt sleeves to meet him. Gruber reached for his pistol, and as he did Dewitt pulled his pocket knife and close in on him. He cut Gruber about the head and neck, almost severing the head from his body. Gruber died almost instantly. Dewitt gave himself up to the sheriff immediately after the killing, Sheriff Creech being in Blackville. Both Dewitt and Miles are now in jail.

WOMAN DOCTOR ATTACKED.

Desperate Struggle With Madman in Ambulance.

New York, September 7.—Dr. Mary Crawford, New York's only female surgeon, for the second time in three weeks, had yesterday a desperate struggle with a madman she was taking to the hospital. The maniac tried to choke her and probably would have succeeded had not a policeman and the driver of the ambulance assisted her. Her coat was torn and her face scratched, but she took the patient to the hospital.
"This ambulance work I find is growing more strenuous every day," said Dr. Crawford in discussing her experience, "but I am going to stick to it if I die. His was the worse case of insanity I have dealt with since I became an ambulance surgeon, and when he attacked me I thought for a moment that it was all over with me. He certainly had a death grip on my throat and if I had not pressed his optic nerves and stopped the blood circulation to his brain I guess I would have been a fit subject for the undertaker."

Many Suicides in Petersburg.

Edgewood Ave. Stores

As a business street, Edgewood avenue has come to the front, probably more rapidly than any other in Atlanta. It is one of the five streets leading directly into the very heart of the city. The wood block pavement and building improvements have materially helped it in a business way, and it is now recognized as a leading retail thoroughfare.
We have for rent several new brick stores on Edgewood, among them being two buildings, each having two floors and basement, between Courtland and Piedmont; two others between Fort and Hilliard, and also two small but very pretty and attractive ones just beyond Hilliard. All of these are new and modern, and especially well suited for retail business.

IN HAND AND IN THE BUSH

"Taft will give us that peculiar thing of which we have heard so much and seen so little—a square deal." So says an admirer of his. Maybe yes and maybe no. Others will also run, and, after all, political platforms are not contracts, "signed, sealed, and delivered." At any rate that "peculiar" brand of "square deal" is still in the dim, misty future quite a way, and you can get the real article in our Office Supply Department any time—right now—this very day.
